LEAGUE OFFICIALS PONDER EFFECTS OF OIL EMBARGO

Committee Opens Deliberations To Study Workability of Proposed Restriction to Italy; Idea Attacked in Editorials.

MEMBERS WEIGH POSITION OF U. S.

Belief Rife Great Britain To Take Lead in Fight Showing Advisability of Move Against Mussolini

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY.
GENEVA, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A committee of experts of the League of Nations began today the work of deciding whether an oil embargo against Italy is workable.

A leading member of the committee said privately he favored drafting two reports to the League council. One would show the practicability of an oil sanction if the United States imposed an oil embargo against Italy; the second would show what effect the sanction would have if Washington did not declare such a boycott.

(Virginia Gayda, informed Italian editorial writer and friend of Premier Mussolini, warned in an article in Rome today that an oil embargo would mean a blockade and a blockade would precipitate a world war.)

A potent problem, in view of the belief that an oil embargo, to be effective, must embrace tankers as well as oil.

The experts want to know how many tankers of non-League states would be available for Italy in case the embargo is applied. Some members argued that non-League countries, such as the United States, could lease tankers to Italy and then charter vessels from sanctionist countries for their own usage.

A subcommittee was appointed to study possible substitutes for oil, while a transport committee will investigate the question of oil ports to determine possible leakage points and means of plugging them up.

Some League officials predicted the committee would decide an oil sanction is practicable if the United States restricts its exports to Italy to the 8 per cent of Italy's total imports which she now sends.

May Prove Efficient.

The belief was expressed in League circles that Great Britain would attempt to prove the efficiency of an oil boycott.

Twelve nations are represented on the committee, but one of them in the role of observer only. They are Great Britain, France, Russia, Mexico, Rumania, The Netherlands, Sweden, Norway, Iraq, Iran (Persia), Peru and Venezuela.

The Venezuelan representative, Dr. Cesar Zúñiga, explained to the committee that he was there merely as an observer.

Dr. R. Marte Gomez, of Mexico, was elected president of the group.

‘Cocoanut’ Hailstones
Fatal to 26 in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A hailstorm in which the hailstones were reported to have been as large as coconuts was said last night to have brought death to 26 natives near Settlers, in the Transvaal.

The stones, it was reported, killed 19, while seven were drowned as a result of the cloudburst, in which 12 inches of rain fell in 15 minutes.

‘G-Men’ Join Search For Wisconsin Man

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Federal agents joined Chicago and Wisconsin authorities tonight in the search for Harry H. Wells, missing from his Monroe, Wis., home since last Tuesday.

His bloodstained car was found abandoned near the Loop Saturday and this morning a bunch of keys bearing his name were recovered from a man who had found them last Wednesday on Sheridan road near the Chicago-Evanston boundary line.

The interstate aspect of the investigation was believed to have led the “G Men” into the hunt for Wells, who left home on business last Tuesday with a considerable sum of money. He told relatives he had recently been recipient of demands from extortionists.

Federal authorities pointed out that a Lindbergh law violation might be involved if an interstate abduction had been consummated.

IL DUCE SUMMONS DEFENSE COUNCIL

Oil Boycotts Are Seen as Threat of European Conflict by Fascists.

ROME, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini summoned his all-supreme defense commission to meet with him tomorrow to make sure Italy is ready in the event of a European war.

War plans showing what the 1,000,000-man military machine could do to protect Italy's 44,000,000 population if League of Nations sanctions result in war will be gone over.

The commission will meet a few hours before the second February session of the fascist grand council to map Italy's immediate military program, chiefly in Africa.

While League experts studied the possibilities of an oil sanction, Virginia Gayda, friend of Il Duce and informed writer, said in an editorial that “this embargo would itself manifest a step from economic to military sanctions.”

Precipitate World War.

A blockade, he warned, would precipitate a world war. Gayda, chief editorial writer of the newspaper Gazzetta d'Italia, is considered often to express Mussolini's viewpoint.

The daily war communique said the “systematizing” of occupied southern territory is proceeding and that natives there are “co-operating actively with our forces against the nucleus of the Ethiopians in the region. There is nothing to note on the Eritrean front.”

The supreme commission of defense which assembles tomorrow brings under Mussolini's direct command every means of defense and offense. Its members are in charge of everything military, from the training of youth to the production of shells and the command of troops.

Commission members are found in the industrial network which supplies the nation with everything. In peacetime they observe. In wartime they have the power of control.

They form a composite board of strategy—with fingers in national military, political, economic, industrial and scientific affairs.

The defense commission is 12 years old but African warfare and European sanctions caused Il Duce to increase its membership and widen its scope.

The ministers of justice, education, press, and the chief inspector of preliminary training units have been added to the council. They will sit with Il Duce in his capacity of minister of troops.

CHIEF TO ANSWER RUM CAR CHARGES WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Council Blocks All Moves Against Police Committee; Probe To Continue Tomorrow, Says Bridges

Police affairs were left solely in the hands of council's police committee and the Key administration as city council yesterday rallied to sustain the committee in two fights to curb its powers.

Mayor Key's veto to a resolution establishing a special committee of five members of city council to take over the investigation of irregularities laid to the department was sustained without comment and an effort by Councilman John A. White to push through an ordinance governing penalties meted out to drinking policemen found only four supporters.

White's move to establish a commissioner of public safety to administer the entire department went to the finance committee for study and report, but, unless the complexion of council changes materially within the next two weeks, there appears little likelihood it will get any serious consideration.

Chief to Answer Charges.

The council battles, during which Councilman J. Allen Couch invited council members, grand jurors, citizens and anyone else knowing of acts of malfeasance among policemen, to appear before the police committee to furnish information, followed by a few hours an announcement by Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, that Chief T. O. Sturdivant, of the department, Wednesday night will answer charges he ordered the illegal release of imprisoned liquor cars to Ralph Owens, alleged bootlegger. The meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the police station.

LOW CASH TAX HIT IN RESTRAINT PLEA

Council Votes To Hold Public Hearing on Intangibles Tax Muddle.

A petition to enjoin Fulton county from collecting more taxes on real estate than it does on cash was filed in Fulton superior court yesterday by an Atlanta capitalist, while in city council it was voted to hold a public hearing on the tax muddle in which both the city and the county now find themselves.

The suit in superior court, filed by Hendrix and Buchanan and Edgar Craighead for Julian J. Jones, property owner, seeks to enjoin county tax authorities from assessing real estate taxes on a higher valuation than they do cash and intangibles.

The injunction plea is based on decisions rendered by Georgia Supreme Court Justice Bleckley and the fourteenth amendment of the United States constitution, which guarantees that “no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States.”

“...nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.”

Offered Cash Basis Payment.

Specifically, Jones' petition states that he, the owner of property assessed in 1935 at $52,520, on which the taxes amount to $788.18 for state and county. He has not paid the tax but instead has offered to Tax Collector J. Earl Suttles a check for $39.39, which would be the amount of taxes

Cobb Says: Hats Off to Huey

By IRVIN S. COBB.
(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LAKE CHARLES, La., Feb. 3. I have no disrespect for Huey P. Long, but for most anyone among us who ever tasted success the verse that was written about Little Old Boy might serve as an epitaph: “While he lived, he lived in clover, but when he died, he died all over.”

I would have said that Huey Long's machine, being essentially a one-man machine, would start falling to pieces before they buried him. But it yet endures and is powerful and, right or wrong, it functions. People here still believe in his policies, still perpetuate his organization, still endorse his designs. Most dictators stop the bitter crop of defeat while they live. Here is one whom from the tomb looms almost as tall as he did when he walked in the flesh.

Admire such a man's record or despise it, nevertheless you have to take off your hat to a personality that can project itself back across the grave.

Cold Winds Whistling Southward; New Freeze Is Expected Tonight

Rains To Continue This Morning, and Are Expected To Aid in Clearing Away Remnants of Snow Before Low Temperatures Strike City.

Cold winds were whistling out of the northwest toward Atlanta today, as persistent rains threatened to continue until tonight when a freeze is probable, according to available weather forecasts.

A night of 38-degree weather was promised Atlanta, however, with the city awakening this morning to nothing worse than the accumulated snows of the last few days melting and being washed away before the freeze of tonight starts.

February is doing its worst—emulating January but not quite reaching the extremes when the first three days of that month found the city groaning and cracking under a burden of 3.60 inches of snow, rain, sleet and ice.

1.10 Inches of Rain.

February's worst—starting Saturday—left Atlanta at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon with 2.25 inches of rain doing its best to wash away January's record 8-inch remnants of snow. The rain, which continued during the night, recorded 1.10 inches between 7 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock.

By the time the cold winds from the northwest reach the city tonight, according to Forecaster George W. Mindling, most of the snow should be washed away. Then the freeze will start in on its own strength.

“How severe or how long Tuesday night's cold spell will last, I can't say,” declared Mr. Mindling. “Persons who live down at West

CONGRESS AWAITS F.D.R.'S TAX VIEWS

No Immediate Pick-Up Is Noted or Expected in Inflationary Movement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Congressional leaders with an eye to growing demands for inflation, looked directly toward the White House tonight for signs of an official presidential pronouncement on tax plans for the session.

Out of the general confusion at the capital as to the final outcome of the tax-inflation situation, two impressions emerged. There was a general understanding that the President would call his advisors into conference, probably later in the week, to outline his tax views.

Secondly, word was circulated that Mr. Roosevelt had reached no final decision as to whether new taxes to liquidate the bonus would be asked at this time, and that such a request might be deferred.

Tax Speculation.

Although a suggestion rested at the White House for a $230,000,000 a year tax program to reimburse the treasury for its bonus payments in 1945, more than one legislator argued today that the administration would seek only $500,000,000 in taxes, probably as excise levies, to finance the new farm program. The President already has sought to emphasize that these would not be in the category of new taxes, since they would replace the processing taxes under the invalidated AAA.

The understanding prevailed among leaders that no more would be made at either the White House or Capitol until Chairman Doughton of the house ways and means committee returns Wednesday from his North Carolina shore. His committee starts all tax measures on the journey through congress.

No immediate pickup in the inflationary movement was noted. Representative Patman, democrat, Texas, was expected, however, to assemble some of the currency expansion bloc tomorrow to select a special steering committee to guide his campaign for

Vice Gang, Held in $435,000 Bail, Is Haled Before N. Y. Grand Jury

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—As swiftly as he collected them over the week-end, Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey presented to his blue-ribbon grand jury tonight the cases of 11 alleged ringleaders in the city's $12,000,000 racket.

Peter Baltzer, alias Pete Harris, arrested in Philadelphia Saturday and held there pending extradition, was indicted on a charge of compulsory prostitution. He was alleged to have made a million dollars a year.

The racket prosecutor's determination to arrest, arraign and indict his prisoners in double quick time resulted in the grand jury convening at unprecedented hours, from 4 p. m. to 11 p. m.

A police department housecleaning operation was reminiscent to Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine sent a confidential squad to inspect the 41 disorderly houses crashed in the week-end raids. Members of Dewey's forces said that David Bettio and Thomas Penachio, among those arrested Saturday, were co-directors of the “Mott street mob.” Mott street lies only a short distance from police headquarters in a district thickly populated by Chinese and Italians.

GREEN IS SPURNED BY MINE WORKERS; LEWIS SUPPORTED

Federation President Appeals in Vain Against Withdrawal of U. M. W. Labor Peace Is Shaken.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The United Mine Workers replied to William Green's plea for peace in the labor family today with a pledge to support their president, John L. Lewis, in the scrap between craft and industrial unionists.

Hoarse and his voice repeatedly breaking, Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, begged his fellow miners not to leave the federation as they threatened last week.

“I plead to you not to go out, to show your loyalty and devotion to your father, to your parent that has fathered and protected you in the times of your greatest need,” Green said.

First, however, he reminded the miners that craft unionists whom Lewis now is fighting had given them considerable financial support in “evil days.” The U. M. W. president's contention is that all workers in an industry should belong to one union, rather than have a union for each craft in an industry. The A. F. of L. disappears.

Miners Boo Green.

Green, who was booed during his speech, warned: “If you do go out, then there will be but one result. The American Federation of Labor will remain supreme. Attacks from within or from without can never shake it from its firm foundation.”

Scattered applause greeted the end of Green's speech. Then Lewis arose. He stood silent for several minutes while the delegates roared, whistled and applauded. “Let me call on all delegates who

OLSON IS ACCUSED BY LIGGETT WIDOW

Woman Collapses After Saying Governor's Gang Permitted the Slaying.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Walter Liggett climaxed a highly dramatic session of Isadore Blumenfeld's trial for her husband's assassination today with the assertion that Governor Floyd B. Olson—and his “gang”—permitted the slaying.

Soon after, nervous from the strain of her long testimony, she collapsed and receded for three hours.

At Rochester, where he is recuperating from an operation, the Governor said he had no statement to make. “They're trying the case up there in Minneapolis,” was his only comment.

The Governor was responsible for appointment of special prosecutors to the case against Blumenfeld, also known as “Kid Cann.”

“The murder would not have been committed without Governor Olson's permission,” the slight woman, garbed in black, told a crowded courtroom. She explained her statement as “meaning they either ordered or permitted it.”

Called Mother.

“I called my mother after Walter was shot,” Mrs. Liggett testified, “and said Governor Olson's gang got Walter.”

“She asked ‘Do you know who did it?’ and I said, ‘Yes, Kid Cann.’”

Before the recess, Mrs. Liggett had been calm under cross-examination. But after the respite in testimony was ordered at state's request, she broke down in the county attorney's office and sobbed hysterically.

Regarded as the prosecution's most important witness, Mrs. Liggett in the morning session reiterated her identification of Blumenfeld as her husband's slayer. She also testified that the night the crusading publisher was slain, December 9, an edition of his publication, the Midwest American, was in the mails, carrying an attack on Blumenfeld, a liquor syndicate salesman, and listing 12 “reasons” why Governor Olson should be impeached.

A state objection as to whether she associated the defendant, a former bootlegger, with Governor Olson's “gang” was overruled and the witness

Present Neutrality Extension Forecast

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—An extension of present neutrality restrictions with the addition of a ban on loans to belligerents tonight appeared a likely outcome of the bitter controversy over legislation to keep America clear of old-world wars.

Such a solution was conceded possible by Chairman Pittman, democrat, Nevada, of the senate foreign relations committee. He insisted nevertheless that the temporary legislation expiring February 29, would be superseded by a sterner statute before the session ends.

The existing temporary act contains only an absolute ban against the shipment of arms or ammunition to belligerents. The permanent administration legislation, opposed in the senate by a “freedom of the seas” bloc would give the President discretionary authority in keeping exports of materials such as oil, cotton and steel to pacetime levels.

TALMADGE LAUDS F. D. R.'S REQUEST

Brief in State's Suit Is Filed in Supreme Court as Law Repeal Is Asked.

While, in Washington, a brief in support of Governor Talmadge's attack on the constitutionality of the Bankhead cotton act was filed with the United States supreme court by Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans, the Governor, in Atlanta, yesterday expressed his full approval of President Roosevelt's request for the Bankhead act repeal.

At the same time, Judge A. B. Lovett, of Savannah, chairman of the Georgia Roosevelt campaign committee, said no definite plans had yet been made for giving the voters of the state an opportunity to decide between the President and Talmadge.

Necessity for waiting for some action by the Talmadge-controlled state democratic committee, which has the power to either call a primary or name an instructor or uninstructed delegation, was pointed to by Judge Lovett.

Pierce County to Vote.

On Georgia county, however, Pierce county, in southeast Georgia, will vote on a presidential candidate. The county executive committee yesterday passed a resolution providing a preferential presidential primary on March 4.

Separate ballots and boxes from those to be used in the regular county primary for local officers are to be provided.

Attacking the Georgia congressional delegation for their support of Roosevelt for the Georgia convention votes, Talmadge yesterday lashed out at the state's representatives, all of whom attended the meeting held Saturday last at which Judge Lovett and Marion Allen, of Milledgeville, state campaign manager for the President, were present.

“Congressmen are getting $10,000 a year to loiter after legislation,” Talmadge said. “The boys who are on the paying end of these salaries can attend to politics back home.”

The Georgia delegation seems to think that they must sink or swim with Roosevelt, but this is not true. “Georgians Appreciate Service.”

“Georgians appreciate faithful service and ability in public office. They are willing to forgive honest mistakes that are well intended, if asked to do so in the right way.”

There are some pretty important bills pending up there. Some important bills have been passed that needed legal lore and didn't have sufficient of that to stand up in the supreme court.”

When told the President had asked for the Bankhead act repeal, Talmadge said he wished to congratulate Mr. Roosevelt, adding: “It comes a little late, but I'm glad to hear of it.”

“I wrote the President over six months ago telling him of the great

COTTON, TOBACCO, POTATO CONTROL SLATED FOR DEATH

Senator Russell Immediately Introduces Measure To Meet Roosevelt Plea; Conservation Bill Wins 17-to-6 Approval.

NO MENTION MADE OF SUGAR MEASURE

Alabama Solon Declares Law Governing Staple Has Served Purpose in Agricultural Sectors.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Congressional leaders moved quickly tonight to carry out President Roosevelt's recommendation for removal from the statute books of three of the four remaining phases of AAA crop control.

As new farm legislation advanced on several fronts, the executive forwarded an eight-line special message to congress urging “prompt repeal” of the Bankhead cotton control, Kerr-Smith tobacco and potato control laws. He did not mention the Jones-Costigan sugar control act.

“This recommendation is made,” Mr. Roosevelt said, “because of the termination of the program of agricultural production adjustment under the act of May 12, 1933, as amended, known as the ‘agricultural adjustment act,’ to which the three acts mentioned were auxiliary.”

Capitol Hill spokesmen agreed this should be done. Senator Russell, democrat, Georgia, introduced a bill to repeal the Bankhead law soon after the message was read. Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, of the house agriculture committee later introduced a 60-word bill to repeal all three laws. It was indicated his committee might meet on the repealer tomorrow.

Doom Foreseen.

It has been generally conceded in administration circles that the three laws mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt were doomed by the supreme court's AAA decision. Most administration leaders, however, contend the sugar act was not disturbed.

Senator Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, who has been conferring with beet sugar men on a plan in event the sugar law is dropped, described the situation as “chaotic,” but contended this act rested on a different basis than the others because two-thirds of it had to do with quota

Solicitor-General H. G. Vandivier, of the Blue Ridge circuit, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident near Alpharetta, and Judge J. Harold Hawkins, of the same circuit, was less seriously hurt.

Vandivier was brought to Crawford W. Long hospital here where his injuries were diagnosed as serious. He was said to be suffering from injuries of the head and chest. Judge Hawkins was treated at the hospital and then allowed to go to his home at Marietta.

Vandivier lives at Canton, Ga. Alpharetta police and Marietta authorities reported last night that details of the accident were lacking.

The Blue Ridge circuit comprises the counties of Cherokee, Cobb, Fannin, Forsyth, Gilmer, Milton and Pickens.

RAID ON 'BOOTLEGGERS' NETS ONE SMALL DRINK

A liquor raid which resulted in an average "drink" instead of expected gallons of the illicit fluid, was staged yesterday by Detectives Leo Nahlik and J. J. Chester.

Becoming suspicious of a small restaurant at 12 Forsyth street, S. W., the detective returned to police headquarters to fortify themselves with a search warrant and county police aid. Back at the restaurant, a business-like search disclosed only one-third of a half pint bottle of whisky. Detectives said they believed a quantity of liquor had been taken from the place before they actually raided.

W. C. Tribble, an operator of the restaurant, was arrested on liquor charges and was later released on $100 bond.

Originating from T. Alfred Fleming, of New York, chairman of the fire prevention committee of the National Fire Protection Association, the award was presented to the Atlanta department in behalf of the city and the association.

PARIS SEEKS SUPPORT TO BAR NAZI INVASION

European Diplomats Talk With Flandin Over Border Pact.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Unwritten agreements were sought by France in further diplomatic conversations today to aid in keeping Germany's reinforced army from stepping over her frontiers, particularly toward Austria.

Pierre-Etienne Flandin, new foreign minister, talked to King Boris of Bulgaria, and the foreign ministers of Turkey, Lithuania and Albania.

Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, and Vice Chancellor Ernst von Starheimberg, of Austria, are on his calling list tomorrow.

Economic reinforcement of Balkan and Danubian countries to keep them politically stable against Nazi influence apparently is an important item in the virtual convention of diplomatic chiefs, although a definite plan of action is lacking.

Turkey, informed quarters said, has dropped the idea of fortifying the Dardanelles, which would constitute a treaty violation, to avoid setting a precedent for Germany's rumored attempt to re-fortify the Rhineland.

Boris was understood to have assured Flandin that Bulgaria will follow the League in whatever it does to protect its borders.

The question of defining "collective security" obligations by fixing sanctions procedure for the future in the light of the League's experience with Italy was said to have been raised in the talks but with little likelihood of its advancing.

A promised Danubian pact, it was reliably reported, was shelved again until Italy, one of the key nations in its framework, can turn her attention from the Ethiopian war back to Europe.

Maxim Litvinoff, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, is said to have shied at the idea of Russian replacing Italy in a promise to fight off Nazi ambitions in the Balkans.

He is believed to have told Flandin that the soviet consider League obligations of joint action against aggressors to be as far as they can go.

The French consequently are trying to bring Bulgaria into the Balkan entente and closer to the Little Entente, as well as bring Russia and Rumania into close relations, France assuring everybody of her help.

Side talks, on which secrecy was maintained, occupied the visiting dignitaries. King Carol of Rumania conferred with Major General Gustave Gamelin, chief of the army general staff, and von Starheimberg with the Albanian foreign minister, Fued Aslanli.

Sir George Russell Clerk, the British ambassador, visited Flandin late in the day, presumably to exchange notes on what the British learned here with what the French learned in similar conversations carried on in London.

PARIS MEET STIRS FEARS IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Conferences of kings and statesmen in Paris caused concern to Austrian officials today.

The Vienna press was nervous over the possibility someone might decide Austria's fate without consulting her. "Do not worry about us," was the comment over an editorial in the newspaper Abendzeitung, which often presents the views of Ernst von Starheimberg, vice chancellor.

The paper said other powers now pretend to concern over Austria's economic situation and form of government "but Austria which defended its independence will take care of its own internal problems and will do so with due regard for the necessity of preserving peace."

Discovered by two 9-year-old schoolboys lying in the street in Drewry street, near Barnett, yesterday afternoon, John Henry Thomas, negro janitor living in the basement of 830 Barnett street, was said by police to have been the victim of a mysterious killing. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Grady hospital.

The body was found by Matthew Hankins, 9, of 915 Drewry street, N. E., and Richard T. Hester, 9, of 1044 Drewry street address. They were returning from school. The boys called police.

Thomas' wife told officers that earlier in the day a negro whom she did not know had been hunting her husband to collect a debt. Police reported they found marks of a fight near where the body was found.

FIREMEN DISOWN SALARY HIKE PLEA

Chief Parker Informs Mayor Individuals Are Not Behind Suit.

Atlanta firemen are not supporting the legal effort to force the city to make full payment of base salaries to them; Mayor Key yesterday was informed by Fire Chief O. J. Parker.

Parker asserted that the firemen's local already has taken official action in the matter and departmental individuals are not behind the suit which has been filed in superior courts.

The petition was filed by A. Steve Nance, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, and J. A. Harper, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades. If successful, it would compel the city to add 10 per cent cash and therefore will constitute a threat to all salary accounts of the fire department.

This Key contends would necessitate emergency actions which would be exceedingly detrimental to the interests of the firemen themselves.

VETERAN TO PROTEST WPA RULING ON BONUS

Protest against war veterans being dropped from WPA rolls since the bonus law passed by congress will be made by Frank R. Fling, national executive committee member of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in an address before the Betty Harrison Jones Chapter No. 1, D. A. V., at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Ansley hotel.

Fling said 300,000 veterans will be removed from relief rolls on payment of the bonus, but he asserted most of the men will pay back debts with the cash and therefore will continue to need aid. The committee will also talk on the fight of major service organizations for a comprehensive neutrality act and adequate national defense. He explained in detail plans of the adjusted service certificates, known as the bonus.

He is believed to have told Flandin that the soviet consider League obligations of joint action against aggressors to be as far as they can go.

The French consequently are trying to bring Bulgaria into the Balkan entente and closer to the Little Entente, as well as bring Russia and Rumania into close relations, France assuring everybody of her help.

Side talks, on which secrecy was maintained, occupied the visiting dignitaries. King Carol of Rumania conferred with Major General Gustave Gamelin, chief of the army general staff, and von Starheimberg with the

FRANCE AND ENGLAND FACING TREATY SPLIT

Nazi Participation in Discussions Threaten to Split 4-Power Meeting.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A rift between the British and French delegations over Germany's prospective participation in treaty discussions threatened tonight to break up the four-power naval conference.

France has not yet replied to a new British demand that she agree that outside naval powers, particularly Germany, be invited to send delegations here but informed quarters felt the reply would be negative.

If it is, the conference is likely to crash because of British insistence on the point, authoritative sources indicated.

Approval of Violation.

This issue goes back to Germany's scrapping of military clauses of the Versailles Treaty last spring. France, nervous over German naval rearmament, contends that participation by Berlin in negotiations here would constitute open approval by the powers of Germany's violation of the treaty.

Another outstanding development today was the acceptance by a technical subcommittee of the American proposal for the extension of the official age of battleships from 20 to 25 years.

The conference must approve the committee's action, but it was believed certain the American plan will be adopted, thereby saving the taxpayers considerable money.

By adding six years to the life of battleships the powers can wait until 1942 before replacing present ships, thus putting off the heavy expenditure involved. The United States will have seven battleships ready for replacement under existing limitations at the end of 1936, Great Britain 1 and Japan 4.

The subcommittee also defined most type of ships and the conference will take up these definitions prior to the drafting of a treaty.

Definitions largely follow those of existing treaties. Battleships are those ships of more than 10,000 tons, cruisers are vessels of 10,000 tons or less, with eight-inch guns or less.

Lighter surface craft are those vessels below 10,000 tons having 6.1-inch guns or less.

Determine Size of Ships.

The conference later must determine the maximum size of battleships, expected to be about 35,000 tons with 14-inch guns. The French and Italians originally opposed battleships of this size, but have agreed to use 35,000 tons as a basis for discussion in the conference.

The Americans, who are not participating in the Anglo-French quarrel about German participation, have adopted a non-committal attitude and are awaiting developments.

There has been no sign that the French would relent and the British refuse to cede the point, claiming Germany must be allowed to participate if a worth-while treaty is to be framed.

Overheard Conversation.

Schulberg said she overheard a telephone conversation between Liggett and Schulberg the day the publisher was slain, explaining the about concern head was "in a rage and shouting" and offered "to bet $500 I haven't got a cutting plant."

"He also said 'There are other ways to stop you,'" she testified, in disclosing Schulberg demanded to know "Why Walter was calling him a rat and classing him with a person like Kid Cann."

Schulberg was questioned but released at the time. In another telephone conversation Liggett was warned from an underworld source he was "running a terrible risk," the witness said.

Mrs. Liggett returned to the stand later looking cool and composed. She testified she did not see Wesley Anderson, a mechanic who has also identified "Kid Cann" as the slayer, near her husband's body when he lay on the pavement.

She denied a newspaper photograph of "Kid Cann" had aided him in picking him out as the slayer in a police showup.

"How far were you from the body, a foot or so?" Thomas McKeein, counsel for the defendant, asked.

"It must . . . have been more than . . . that. He . . . was a tall man. His head was about 10 feet . . .

from me." She replied hesitantly. She was too stunned, she said, to think of looking at the license plates of the killer's car.

"Did you become hysterical?" "Naturally I did. Not at the moment. At the moment I was paralyzed until I heard the little girl (Marda Liggett, 10, who was in the Liggett car) scream and that brought me out of my daze."

"I don't think I screamed. People came. I begged them to call an ambulance. I thought my husband was alive and could be saved. I think I knelt next to his body."

"Did you say, 'Walter, who shot you, who shot you?' McKeein questioned.

"No, I didn't say that. I opened his shirt and saw bullet marks." Tears welled in the witness' eyes.

"When people asked you who shot your husband did you say 'How could I know, how could I know?'"

"That isn't so."

"Mrs. Liggett denied telling a detective Schulberg was in the killer's car. Questioning by McKeein then brought in the name of Philip "Flip" Share, of Minneapolis, who once was charged with murder.

She saw him watching the Liggett newspaper office, Mrs. Liggett testified, about "six or eight weeks" before the publisher was slain.

She saw him coming to the office. Mrs. Liggett was excused the last witness of the day, Louis Anderson, father of Wesley, testified Wesley had told him that "Kid Cann" was the killer.

BANKHEAD ACT REPEAL REQUEST IS APPROVED

Injustice these laws (all those connected with the AAA) were working," the Governor said, "and also that they were encouraging importation of foreign stuff. But I'm glad he's done this."

Prior to the supreme court's decision that the NRA and AAA were unconstitutional, Talmadge predicted such a thing would happen.

No Plans Made.

Judge Lovett, chairman of the Georgia Roosevelt campaign committee of 28, here to argue a case in the state supreme court, said no definite plans yet had been made for giving the people an opportunity to decide between the President and Talmadge.

The judge said the Roosevelt forces were determined that the people of Georgia will not be given the opportunity to decide between the President and Talmadge.

In Washington opposition to a government motion to dismiss the attack on the Bankhead cotton production control act brought by Governor Talmadge was expressed in a brief filed with the supreme court yesterday by M. J. Yeomans, Georgia attorney general.

Arguments on the government motion are scheduled before the court for probably tomorrow. If the court overrules the government, the case then would be heard on its merits.

Proceedings to Continue.

Court attaches said the proceedings would continue despite President Roosevelt's recommendation to congress that the Bankhead and two other farm control acts be repealed in view of the ruling holding AAA unconstitutional.

Saying that the basis of the Agricultural Adjustment Act was "voluntary submission to regulation for a conservation," the Georgia brief continued:

"That, however, was soon followed by the compulsion of the Bankhead law. The act requires the commodity tag and makes handling the commodity a criminal offense unless it is so tagged."

"Producers are offered contracts with the secret government, giving them complete control and regulation of agricultural production. Those who submit to this control and regulation are then provided, free of any other charge, with the tags to affix to their product."

"Those who do not submit to regulation are charged 50 per cent of the value of the commodity for the tag. If they do not buy or submit to the so-called tag, their property is virtually destroyed and they are subject to prosecutions for crime if they endeavor to exercise the usual rights of ownership."

Water sports, such as year-round bathing, fishing and boating in a mountain lake, are foreseen in the semi-desert area near Tucson, Ariz., when a big dam for flood control is built in Sabino canyon.

replied the murder would not have occurred unless "Governor Olson permitted it."

She said she retained a "vivid" picture of the killer's face but could not recall whether he sat in the front or rear seat of the assassin's automobile.

"The face is terrifically vivid," she said. "The position is not. I see that thing over and over again. It is one of those horrible things you can't forget. I was aware of one spurt of flame. I was just vaguely aware of a gun. A man's head was sticking out of the window."

She also suggested to police, she testified, that they pick up Meyer Schulberg when they took the "Kid" into custody.

Schulberg said she overheard a telephone conversation between Liggett and Schulberg the day the publisher was slain, explaining the about concern head was "in a rage and shouting" and offered "to bet $500 I haven't got a cutting plant."

"He also said 'There are other ways to stop you,'" she testified, in disclosing Schulberg demanded to know "Why Walter was calling him a rat and classing him with a person like Kid Cann."

Schulberg was questioned but released at the time. In another telephone conversation Liggett was warned from an underworld source he was "running a terrible risk," the witness said.

Mrs. Liggett returned to the stand later looking cool and composed. She testified she did not see Wesley Anderson, a mechanic who has also identified "Kid Cann" as the slayer, near her husband's body when he lay on the pavement.

She denied a newspaper photograph of "Kid Cann" had aided him in picking him out as the slayer in a police showup.

"How far were you from the body, a foot or so?" Thomas McKeein, counsel for the defendant, asked.

"It must . . . have been more than . . . that. He . . . was a tall man. His head was about 10 feet . . .

from me." She replied hesitantly. She was too stunned, she said, to think of looking at the license plates of the killer's car.

"Did you become hysterical?" "Naturally I did. Not at the moment. At the moment I was paralyzed until I heard the little girl (Marda Liggett, 10, who was in the Liggett car) scream and that brought me out of my daze."

"I don't think I screamed. People came. I begged them to call an ambulance. I thought my husband was alive and could be saved. I think I knelt next to his body."

"Did you say, 'Walter, who shot you, who shot you?' McKeein questioned.

"No, I didn't say that. I opened his shirt and saw bullet marks." Tears welled in the witness' eyes.

"When people asked you who shot your husband did you say 'How could I know, how could I know?'"

"That isn't so."

"Mrs. Liggett denied telling a detective Schulberg was in the killer's car. Questioning by McKeein then brought in the name of Philip "Flip" Share, of Minneapolis, who once was charged with murder.

She saw him watching the Liggett newspaper office, Mrs. Liggett testified, about "six or eight weeks" before the publisher was slain.

She saw him coming to the office. Mrs. Liggett was excused the last witness of the day, Louis Anderson, father of Wesley, testified Wesley had told him that "Kid Cann" was the killer.

THE POLICE MESS

With the police department again the focal point of a heated controversy, marked by the increasingly bitter exchange of charges and counter-charges between the heads of the department, the grand jury and the city government, the limit of public patience has been reached and there is a universal demand that something be done to put an end to a situation that scandalizes the city.

For 50 years, under one police administration after another, the same wrangling and bickering has gone on, with the city at no time receiving the kind of policing to which it is entitled—and this has never been more true than now.

A new underworld has been permitted to come into existence; burglaries and robberies are staged in the heart of the city and the thieves are but seldom tracked down; traffic conditions are worse than in practically any other city in the country; and a steady procession of police officers are being found guilty of drunkenness, petty graft and negligence of duty.

The existence of these conditions is known to every citizen of Atlanta, and it is not surprising that the last grand jury in its presentments cited that "the Atlanta police force is a very ineffective organization as a whole and the discipline and morale of the force is considerably below what should be expected in a well-organized and effective police department."

The mayor has taken the position that the police board should make the first investigation of the charges that have been made against the department, and if it cannot solve the problem it will then be up to council to act.

Certainly the recognized inefficiency of the department, together with what has already been developed in the board probe, warrants drastic action of some kind.

If the board does not realize this and act accordingly, then it must step aside and let others clean up the mess!

One thing is certain—the public is sick and tired of the constant wrangling over the police department and the amateurish and lackadaisical service it is rendering. There are many fine officers on the force but they are prohibited from rendering the kind of service of which they are capable because of the administrative conditions existing and the public rows that are constantly breaking out as a result of these conditions.

If the board or the council cannot find a solution that will assure the proper direction of the department, then the people must step in and see to it that a housecleaning from top to bottom is effected.

Every man knows he is master of his own home but few have the courage to break the news to their wives.

Intelligence without education is a streamlined train without passengers.

Since canoeing is not general few born boat rockers are ever able to enjoy their specialty. But cheer up! There are plenty of opportunities for anyone to slam on the brakes on a slippery street.

The honeymoon is over when the husband no longer is a half hour ahead of time for a downtown appointment with his bride and the wife is more than a half hour late.

BALANCE THE BUDGET

Despite the activity of the inflationist bloc in congress, the country can be assured that there will be no inflation of the currency—and there should not be.

No government that ever resorted to this expedient to solve its financial problems has failed by so doing to bring aggravated trouble, in the long run, and it is certain that the congress will not stick its head in the noose that has never failed in the past to strangle, instead of revive, an ailing currency.

The most vital problem now faced by congress, and by the people of the country, is to put the government on a balanced budget basis. That should be given first consideration by congress.

Congress must face the fact that the more than two billion dollars needed to pay the bonus, and the necessity for almost another billion to continue the agricultural relief program, will require additional taxation.

An increase in the tax burden at any time is a bad thing, and it is particularly bad for those responsible when it comes in an election year, but it is clear that there is no other recourse now. It is a question only of the method of the new tax levy.

We have reached the limit of taxation on industry, income from business and on business generally, and we have "soaked the rich" until there are but few left to soak. In the soaking process the ranks of the unemployed have not decreased as fast as was hoped.

The sales tax looms high above the horizon as the only way out. This tax has worked well, it is pointed out, in the trial state of Mississippi, where it has lifted the state debt, and where even those that once opposed it are now supporting it.

In the states where it has not been as successful it has either been improperly applied or been permitted to become a political issue. This was the case in Kentucky, where it was repealed on the mistaken theory that it was a tax against the poor, the absurdity of which is apparent.

Regardless of whether it is good or bad, it looms now as the most probable way by which congress will attempt to meet the new demands upon the treasury.

Certainly something must be done toward balancing the budget.

A TRUST WELL BESTOWED

The designation by President Walter Rose, of the National Real Estate Board, of Morris M. Ewing, leading Atlanta realtor, as a member of the housing committee of the board, assures that the interests of this section in the vitally important move to launch a great nationwide home building campaign will be experienced and capable hands.

Not only is Mr. Ewing intimately familiar with realty conditions in Atlanta and the south, but he has evidenced in many ways his devotion to the public welfare. He is now a director of the Atlanta Real Estate Board and is a former president of the organization.

Few communities in the country are more backward in home ownership than Atlanta, and there is in addition a definite shortage in homes of all kinds. It is of vital importance that these conditions be properly presented to the federal government in its consideration of the proposed huge building program as the final step in the recovery program.

Accurate and impartial information will be furnished from this section under the direction of Mr. Ewing, and his well-founded advice will contribute to the success of the important task entrusted to the housing committee of the national board of ascertaining and making a comparative study of housing conditions in every section of the country.

Another certain means of abolishing war would be a rule that all statesmen's heads must be as sound as soldiers' bodies.

Now that the presidential hats are natty arranged in the center of the ring, who'll throw a pocketbook?

World's Window

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Looking Back At Ethiopia.

First contacts with Abyssinian religious customs make one think of the orthodox Jews in Jerusalem. The Abyssinians "daven." To "daven" is the slight forward and backward motion of the upper body in which orthodox Jews engage while praying. It grows in intensity and speed in the measure that the man who prays is carried away by a mystic exaltation. Every visitor to the Keflavik, the Walling Wall in the Holy City, has stood in amazement before the spectacle of old Jews standing there praying "davening" while carrying with their hands the unfeeling stones of what they believe to be remnants of Solomon's temple, perfectly oblivious to what is going on around them, immersed in, if not intoxicated with, spiritual thoughts.

Abyssinians make the same outward show of devotion in front of sacred buildings. They kiss the stone steps that lead up to the entrance of churches and lovingly pass their hands over the brick walls of such edifices. I have seen thousands of unkempt, wild-haired, and bare-chested men, from interior provinces, who passed through Addis Ababa on their way to the front, suddenly grow still, as if awestruck, at the sight of St. George's cathedral in the square where the emperor stands the golden statue of the Emperor Menelik. The sight of that edifice struck those hilarious, semi-wild men speechless. I could not help but think of that little party of Galla fishermen, who, upon seeing Jerusalem for the first time, exclaimed in astonishment: "Gold Master, what manner of houses and stones! They were overwhelmed by what they saw."

Noisy Churches.

A second resemblance, again with the outer aspects of orthodox Judaism, is the noisy interior of the Abyssinian churches, and the constant ripple of talk. People moved up and down, greeted each other, discussed matters which mean little, if anything, to the worshippers, and generally behaved in an unbecomingly manner to our way of thinking. That is just it: to our way of thinking, we are used to solemnity and dignity in our western places of worship, when entering a church we are in a certain mood, we affect a certain manner, not to say a certain face. A laughing man, or a noisy Jew, is a disgrace to our Jewish synagogue. I am struck with amazement and even seems to us to contain a note of impiety. We forget that the Jew is an oriental.

The relationship between God and man amongst orientals is much more free than with us. And no wonder! How many thousands of years is it that the Jew and his God entered history together, and quarreled and were "peevish" at each other and made up again. Amongst their tribe on earth were men who walked with God, as Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and who sat with Him in the doorway of their tent at evening? Years ago I read in a book that a certain rabbi in Carpathia-Kussatz, a lack of decorum in his synagogue during services. And he gave me an answer which goes a long way towards explaining many things in oriental customs which seem incomprehensible to us. He said: "The synagogue is the House of God. We are God's children. We feel ourselves perfectly at home in our Father's house. You yourself," he went on, "would not want to stand on ceremony in your father's house. Well, we don't either. It is not expected of us!" Remarkable answer.

Children Play.

Well, the Abyssinians not only sing and chatter in their temples. Mothers bring their infants and let them play around. And why not? "Even the angels have a nest and nestlings. The angels, O Adonai, my God, the Hebrew Psalmist. Why not children? Why should not children play in His house and clap their little hands in gladness in His presence? So they do in Japan. So they do in the desert of Qadish when Jahve, the mighty protector of Israel, was brought back into camp after a victory over his people's foes? Then everybody danced."

The Abyssinians dance in church. The priests execute a mystic dance of the altar on certain high holy days.

The Roman Catholic clergy out in some parts of Africa also dance religious dances. Men have always danced in religious ecstasy. In the cold, gray west, we do not dance in church, it is true. But we do not know what religious ecstasy is, either David danced before the Ark of the Covenant. It was not accounted lewd. The Abyssinians, and the Jews, of the Abyssinian church, once whether the priests in his country danced. "No," he danced before David. The human race danced to express joy, or anger, or even sorrow, long before it could express itself coherently in speech."

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

CYRUS W. FIELD.

"England and America—clashing bands across the sea—this friendship grasp is a pledge of friendship to all generations!" thus ended the speech of Cyrus West Field at the dinner given in his honor by the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York, November 15, 1866, in commemoration of the final completion and successful working of the Atlantic cable. If you were in New York to name a dozen dinner occasions in the history of our nation that I would say were epochal, that dinner would have to go into the list.

They had worked 13 years and spent $12,000,000. They had tasted victory in 1858, only to have that first cable snap after sending something like 400 messages. They followed the task of rebuilding confidence in the enterprise, and the discouragements of the War between the States. But Cyrus W. Field, great American that he was, would give up. He went to England and organized new capital, receiving public approval from men like Faraday and Sir William Thomson. At last, in August, 1866, their labors were richly crowned and two cables linked England and America.

For sheer description, I know of few passages in English literature to compare with the address of Cyrus Field on November 15, 1866, particularly that portion of his address dealing with the marvelous feat of "fishing up" the broken cable in mid-ocean, at a depth of two and half miles, bringing the powerful strand of gutta-percha from the very bottom of the sea at midnight. Read it for yourself, and rejoice in the mighty deeds of men fired with high ambition.

"Such, gentlemen, in brief is the story of the ocean telegraph. Often my heart has been ready to sink. I have seen my companions fail, one by one. I have prayed that I might not taste death till this work was accomplished. That prayer is answered: and now beyond all my acknowledgments to men to men, I feel of gratitude to Almighty God," said Mr. Field.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

FREEZE-OUT WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—An epidemic of chilblains has been prevalent among senate and house leaders the last few days. It was not the thermometer that froze their venerable toes, but the way the White House left them out of the early tax program conferences. They did not like the zero treatment, and said so (where they could not be heard).

Actually, the only tax news they got during the first ten days the program was under consideration was what they read in the newspapers. And some of them flatly refused to believe the President's own quotations when these were published a few days ago.

The inside explanation is two-fold: (1) President Roosevelt has been having a hard time himself trying to decide what to do, and (2) he knew what kind of advice he would get from his congressional leaders. They are dead set against general tax legislation until after election.

BALLOONING The official New Deal leak on taxes has been Attorney-General Homer Cummings. He has nothing directly to do with that subject, so he has been able to speak freely—off the record. (It was Mr. Cummings who first anonymously spread the word about ten days ago that a tax program was under consideration.) The unannounced fact is Mr. Cummings has been slyly acting as trial balloonist to test public and congressional reaction without involving Messrs. Roosevelt and Morgenthau. He has been in on all the White House tax conferences, ostensibly as interpreter of supreme court legal opinion, but doubling in his more important ballooning capacity. That shows how cautiously the top New Dealers have been proceeding in this very delicate matter.

NEUTRALITY Certain intangible signs suggest that the administration will acquiesce in abandonment of new neutrality legislation. No official will admit it yet, but the strategy is clearly working around toward renewal of existing law.

The inner State Department attitude is that existing law is better than a new bill which would tie the President's hands completely. At the capitol, all hands agree that the bill is "very difficult to write." Few are trying very hard to solve the difficulty. After all, there is a large Italian vote.

SCARE-CROWS The Japanese press broke forth with a new one when it suggested that a Japanese-American understanding was imminent to split up the Pacific ocean. At the same time, a little Japanese story reached London that a secret Japanese-German alliance was near fruition. It did not take wise diplomats long to peg these two yarns.

The Japanese and soviet have been having a lot of light running trouble in soviet-controlled Mongolia and along the Siberian border. The Japanese have not been getting the best of it. Moscow, however, has been nervous. If the two planned stories were true, she would have been hysterical.

The subtle little scare might have worked, except that State Secretary Hull let it be known that this government had no intention of going into the ocean-splitting business, and had never heard of it.

CAMARADERIE For some days the leading authorities here have been expecting the London naval conference to wind up with a small last-minute surprise.

The four large powers (United States, Britain, France and Italy) reached a basis of agreement after Japan withdrew. This agreement provided that each would give the other four months' advance notice of ship-building intentions. The final twist on it is expected to be an understanding that each advance notice be kept strictly confidential among the contracting parties.

Germany and Russia will be asked to join later. Thus, these six powers will at least know what is going on. But Japan, having withdrawn, will be left in the dark.

Of course, Tokyo will learn about the new ships once the keels are laid, but the confidential nature of the agreement may help the major powers to keep one jump ahead of the Japanese in a building race. At least, that is the purpose.

NOTES The least understandable part of the new congressional drive for more money is the fact that there is already too much. The banks are bulging with more than $3,000,000,000 of excess reserves and have nothing to do with it, except to buy government bonds.

There is less inner excitement here about Governor Talmadge and his movement than you would suppose. The New Dealers may be underestimating him, but they consider his threat to be greater in publicity value than in political strength. Also the republicans are not counting very much on him.

Another reason why the White House is so cautious and silent these days is that any new idea it expresses immediately becomes a campaign issue. That is why it went to such lengths to choose a Federal Reserve Board which the senate would unanimously accept.

Poor Diet For a Cat.
One of the unsolved problems of today is the disposal of the holes out of the hole and out of it up to the appropriate size. She tells me she has made as many as ten good buttonholes out of one doughnut hole.

A more careful look at the habit of leaving her old doughnut holes lying around the house, discovered the cat had been eating them.

And the cat was so full of holes he looked as if a whole battalion of moths had been working on him.

It happens that this family's radio has been out of order for some time. They have been taking a needed vacation from the announcers and the crooners and the amatees. And, talking together one evening, they were in discovered that not one of the three has heard that tune about the rotary nature of melody.

Split Infinitives.
At a recent couple of erudite gentlemen at adjoining desks are volubly discussing the evils of split infinitives. From the fragments of their conversation that I can keep, they seem to think the habit is simply terrible.

Personally, I don't think the average reader cares at all whether the writer splits infinitives or ralls and for myself, if it sounds all right to me I'll split as many infinitives as the next one. I've always written by ear, rather than by rule, and so long as it sounds smooth to me and conveys the sense I am trying to express I'm never going to start paring my own sentences or delving into the mysteries and abstractions of grammar and syntax.

Is It Health, Or Poverty?
There is an elderly man who frequently sits on an adjoining stool to me in the R. H. H. commissary. I notice his meal is always the same. Cup of coffee and a couple of hot rolls.

As it worries me, it seems so inadequate for a lunch. I wonder whether it is some sort of diet he follows or whether the diet is all he can spare. He's a nice looking old fellow and it is disturbing to think possibly he goes hungry every day.

Business. The English, make an important point of loathing the vulgarity of the American press, there is comfort in the fact that the English papers having the greatest circulation are those which have attempted to imitate the gaudiest features of our journalism.

Notwithstanding the severity of the English libel law and the restrictions governing the coverage of crime, they have managed to achieve a rich yellow complexion and would be much yellower if they dared. It has not been many years since the English press was permitted to publish sensational news in covering divorce trials, and did so with an enthusiasm which bespoke an eager public appetite for intimacies which according to American standards were much too good for publication.

The privilege of printing sheer filth finally was abolished by the government in the interests of moral hygiene, and although the public waters were taken into consideration, the public taste was ignored, for they do love their smut.

Makes Error. I find that I was mistaken when I expressed the opinion that the English journalists do not know how to get a story or write one, because they have just done an excellent job of landing all over a big story in the London papers.

They have chosen the king's death and funeral, and they do have some first class writers, although the latter often ignore such essentials as first names and make use of the perpendicular pronoun in trivial items which were better done in the impersonal style.

All English journalists except those employed in covering divorce trials, and did so with an enthusiasm which bespoke an eager public appetite for intimacies which according to American standards were much too good for publication.

A new and aggressive crew has come along, and does not approach government officials with hat in hand but throw open the door and walk in with a confident "How do you do?"

The More Fat the Sheep Puts On, the More There Is for the Wolf

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

(Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution.)

In Arabia lived two men, a rich merchant and a poor camel driver. Each man had a single son who was the apple of his eye, and the two sons were born in the same year.

As other fathers have done since the beginning of time, these two desired above all things to make the lives of their sons easier and happier than their own had been.

The merchant increased his business and his wealth year after year and gave himself little rest, but each day he spent an hour with his son. And often he said to the boy: "Listen to your teachers and learn the ways of a gentleman, for you will be very rich and must know how to enjoy wealth."

The camel driver earned little money, but he was able to employ a learned man to teach his son the arts of reading, writing and ciphering, and he himself taught the boy to ride a camel, to leap on a running horse and to protect himself from a knife.

Also he taught him to know honest men from rogues, and to judge a man by his eyes rather than his speech, and to trade camels honestly, but always obtain a better animal than he gave.

So the years passed and the merchant's son became a polished rider schooled in the art of living graciously, and the son of the camel driver became as hard and sharp as a fished wolf.

Then a day came when the fathers lay down to die and each man called his son to his couch.

"My son," said the rich merchant, "I leave you great wealth. Live happily and remember that my one desire was to make your way easy."

And the camel driver said: "My son, I leave you a great inheritance."

"Yes, father," said the son, "with three camels I can do well."

"They are nothing," said the camel driver.

"But what else shall I get?" asked the son.

"I have trained you well," said the father, "and the earth belongs to those who have the skill to win it. The rich merchant has labored these many years to gather your inheritance for you. You will find it in the keeping of his softling son."

Hollywood Today

BY SHEILAH GRAHAM.

(Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution.)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3.—There's a quaint old British custom called "The Dumpling Flit," practiced once a year in Essex, England. A tribunal meets to decide which of the competing couples—usually never more than six—has been married the longest and, what is more important, is the happiest. Only husbands and wives who have not quarreled with each other throughout their married life are eligible to receive the first prize—a slice of bacon.

A similar institution could never be established in Hollywood—but not for the reason you think. There are no happy marriages here—at least, not the kind that would be able to decide to whom to award the bacon.

Until George Arliss migrated to England to make his home for Gaumont British, his wife, the former Florence Montgomery, and he held the record for the longest marriage in Hollywood. It is now 37 years since the grand old man of the screen and his mate promised to "love, honor and obey till death do us part." Which is something of a boast of anywhere, let alone in Hollywood.

The throne of marriage longevity is now occupied by the Jimmy Gleasons, who have 29 years in the matrimonial black to their credit. Next come the Edna and Harold Hays, who have been married 23 years. Edna, the Cantor and Ida are third, with an impressive score of 22 years. Warner Baxter and the former Winifred Brown have 21 years to their credit.

After many rumors of separation, the Leale Howards are now admitting they are perfectly sane and sane. The Leales have been married for 18 years. The Clive Brooks are 16 married years old, the Paul Munis 15. Harold Lloyd and Mildred Davis have 14 years to their credit.

But the credit for the existing happy Hollywood marriages cannot be given to the happy couples of the youngsters. Five of the above mentioned couples are childless—the Baxters, Arlisses, Cagneys, Lionel Barrymore and Munis—but they have a grand total of 98 years of married bliss among them.

that may help you...

The first step toward relieving simple headache is to understand its cause. Pain is the cry of over-taxed nerves for rest. And when we realize that the nerves spread throughout every part of the body (see head diagram) we understand how serious a nervous disturbance can be.

In selecting a remedy for headache, periodic pains, and other nerve pain use one that soothes the tense nerves. Capudine is ideally suited for simple headache, neuralgia pain, rheumatic, or periodic pain because it relieves high nerve tension and brings welcome relaxation. Also remember that Capudine is quick because it is a liquid—the ingredients are already dissolved. No narcotics or opiates.

STATE-OWNED MARKET, FIRST IN GEORGIA, OPEN

Linder Hails New Farmers' Market as 'Step Forward'; Dealers Objected.

Georgia's first state-owned market opened here yesterday as officials stoutly maintained the state was not going into business. The market, costing $125,000, is one of eight to be erected throughout the state. It was financed jointly by the state and Fulton county.

"We believe it is a great step forward in developing more satisfactory outlets for farm produce," Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder said. "The state is not going into business. It is merely furnishing a market site."

Linder is a firm political ally of Governor Thomas, who frequently has assailed the federal government on charges of competing with private industries.

One court battle already had been fought over the market. A group of produce dealers sought to restrain establishment of the market system, charging "it would ruin their privately-owned businesses."

They lost in a hearing at Hazelhurst.

The state-wide system was authorized by the legislature last year in an act providing the commission of agriculture with sweeping powers.

He is authorized to establish farmers' markets, acquire sites and buildings and supervise them. The commission may even declare an embargo on fruits and vegetables brought into Georgia from other states.

The market here will cater to retail and wholesale trade. It has three sheds capable of accommodating 300 trucks and "will sell everything that grows on farms," Linder said.

Carl Ellis, of Hazelhurst, and Mercer Habin, of Atlanta, and several employees of the Department of Agriculture have been assigned to supervise the market.

Eventually, Linder expects to use the market system to standardize grades, as authorized in the 1935 legislation.

"This is a matter we will have to work forward toward," Linder said. "The market won't revolutionize farming in Georgia overnight but it's a great step ahead."

'Foods on Parade' Cooking School To Feature Practical Budgeting

Mrs. Housewife, attention please! You are invited to be the guest of The Constitution at the complete four-day course of "Foods on Parade," 1936 edition, which will be presented at the Georgia theater for four days, beginning Tuesday, February 11.

This cooking school of luxury is in line with the policy of The Constitution to be of utmost service to its readers. We know from letters written to our various departments, the problems which confront the housewife in these times when budgets are limited and food prices are high.

We know the desire of women of Atlanta to prepare good food for their families without extravagance. And we know also, that no one is better qualified to bring advice on these problems to Atlanta women, in an entertaining and practical way, than Miss Ruth Chambers, who has been engaged to conduct "Food on Parade."

No Stranger. Miss Chambers is no stranger to Atlanta women. Her success in lecturing and demonstrating methods of meal planning and food preparation during past years as instructor of The Constitution cooking school has made her well known to many women here.

Her appearance here each year is like a culinary grand opera and the new ideas and methods of food preparation which she brings in her annual talks with Atlanta women leave a year-around impression on Atlanta's dinner tables.

While "Foods on Parade" is a dramatic and colorful presentation, it is as practical and "down to earth" as the most thrifty housewife can desire. This is evidenced by the fact that special attention is paid to the selection and preparation of meats, that important item in the current household budget.

Best Cooking Methods. The latest and best methods of cooking all kinds of meat are demonstrated with particular reference to the less demanded and therefore the less expensive cuts of meat.

This is a date to be held in great anticipation. February 11-14, "Foods on Parade," The Constitution's cooking school, at the Georgia theater.

Atlanta has again placed in the front ranks of cities of the United States most dangerous to automobile drivers and pedestrians, according to a report released yesterday by the bureau of census of the Department of Commerce.

Back in the fall of 1935 Georgia took first place in auto fatalities over all the states of the Union during one week-end. The doubtful accomplishment brought perfunctory comment in newspapers of the country and shame to this state.

And now Atlanta, according to the Bureau of Census, takes fourth place in the death rate from automobile accidents per 100,000 population in a census of the 86 largest cities of the country for the four-week period ending January 18.

GRAND JURY ORDERED TO PROBE LOEB DEATH

Jurors Will Be Asked To Indict Day on Murder Charge.

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A Will county grand jury today was ordered to sift the sensational stories evoked by the razor slaying of college-trained convict Richard Loeb.

Circuit Judge E. L. Wilson set February 17 for the impaneling of a jury to ascertain whether Loeb was executed in a "deliberate murder plot" engineered by inmate enemies or was hacked to death in a private quarrel with Prisoner James Day.

State's Attorney W. R. McCabe requested the inquiry. He said the 23 jurors would be asked to indict Day on a murder charge but that the question of investigating charges of favoritism, laxity and vice at the institution would be left to their judgment.

The prosecutor's court appearance followed his announcement that information furnished by one of two convicts he had questioned "may lead to the real motive." He declined to elaborate.

He asserted his visit to the penitentiary today had produced more evidence that Loeb was killed in a carefully planned conspiracy.

McCabe, frankly skeptical of Day's contention that he slew Loeb because the 1924 "thrill killer" had made improper advances, told reporters he would quiz the confessed killer under a lie detector.

McCabe's attorney disclosed an unnamed guard, recently discharged, had informed him of a plot by Loeb's convict companions to use explosives to commandeer a stolen railroad car in an attempt to escape. Penitentiary officials declared the story had no foundation in fact. Warden Joseph Ragen said inmates were allowed very limited quantities of celluloid to fashion various trinkets but that they possessed insufficient amounts to constitute a peril.

McCabe discounted reports Nathan Leopold, partner of Loeb in the slaying of Bobby Franks, was in "grave danger" of attack by other prisoners as a result of charges leveled against him in Springfield, Ill. Bowen, state director of public welfare, finished a voluminous written report on his inquiry before he conferred with Governor Henry Horner.

HORNER INVITES GROUP TO PROBE PENAL SYSTEM. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3.—(AP) Sixteen prominent men were invited by Governor Henry Horner tonight to serve on a board empowered to examine the entire state penal system following the razor slaying of Richard Loeb at Stateville penitentiary last Tuesday.

Governor Horner addressed letters of invitation to each of the 16 after a five-hour conference with A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare.

Bowen returned from Stateville prison at Joliet, after making an inquiry into the death of Loeb, co-slayer of Bobby Franks in 1924. He was backed to death by convict "James Day" in what State's Attorney W. R. McCabe, at Joliet, said was a "deliberate murder plot."

The Governor said the committee, a voluntary group, would decide on its own procedural methods, and its members would serve without compensation but with expenses paid by the state.

DECATUR WOMEN OPEN BOND DRIVE

New Organization To Solicit Support for $80,000 Issue.

Decatur's $80,000 bond issue for sewer, school and road improvements yesterday received the backing of a new organization of Decatur women headed by Mrs. Henry Cassell, chairman; Mrs. C. N. Kell, co-chairman, and Mrs. Pittman Sutton, secretary.

Headquarters for the organization, which will solicit support for the bond issue from all women voters in Decatur, has been established in the Decatur Masonic temple building.

Preliminary work was begun yesterday with the compiling of a list of registered women voters and daily clinics are scheduled to be held at the headquarters to explain the benefits of the bond issue, which will be voted on February 14.

Mrs. Cassell pointed out yesterday that if the bonds are voted now, 65 per cent of the cost will be paid by the federal government, but that the city would have to bear the entire cost if the issue is not carried at the coming election.

A majority of the city's registered voters must ballot in favor of the bond issue on February 14 in order for the issue to carry.

DIVORCES SET RECORD FOR FULTON CALENDAR

A record number of undefended divorces are likely to be heard in Fulton superior court this week by Judge E. D. Thomas.

Miss Lillian Jenkins, calendar clerk, had already listed 470 "ite" yesterday afternoon and said it was probable the figure will run over 500 before the end of the week. Four hundred cases for a term is average. Judge Thomas called 100 cases yesterday.

With the exception that five of the first few cases involve furniture throwing by irritated husbands, plaintiffs had little to offer in the way of reasons why they should be granted divorces. The usual number of complaints involving mental cruelty, drunkenness, desertion, failure to support and infidelity appeared.

THREATENED STRIKE IN NEW YORK DELAYED

Elevator Walkout Temporarily Averted by Intervention of Ben Golden.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mediation by Ben Golden, secretary of the regional labor board, postponed the much-threatened strike of elevator operators in 1,200 buildings today.

Golden stepped between realty owners and the Building Service Employees International Union at the invitation of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia. He called a conference after office hours between James J. Bambrick, president of the union, and officials of the Penzone and the Midtown Realty Associations.

Consequently elevator indicators swung in their accustomed orbits all day. More than 2,000 police mobilized at danger points in the fur and garment district on the middle west side of Manhattan island idly swung nightsticks which they are not allowed ordinarily to carry in daylight.

Office workers, some of whom brought their lunch, rode down to the streets as usual but none were sure they would not have to walk down tomorrow night.

Regarding last night's conference which lasted until nearly dawn, Bambrick said: "I was forced into the conference by city officials."

He admitted that realty interests had made "substantial concessions" toward a closed shop and wage increase for 85 per cent of his men. Points still under discussion included reduction in hours and increases in wages for building superintendents and watchmen.

F. D. R. ASKS REPEAL OF BANKHEAD ACT

Limitations on imports to offset tariff cuts on Cuban raw sugar.

Day's Developments:

1—Report by the house agriculture committee of the Jones soil conservation bill to provide a two-year substitute for the AAA. A vote of 17 to 6 sent to the house floor a bill a little different than the companion Bankhead measure which the senate made its order of business for tomorrow.

2—Senate passage without a record vote of the Smith bill authorizing $800,000 for 1935 cotton and feed loans. This now goes to the house.

3—Senate passage of the $367,000,000 deficiency bill with an item of $296,185,000 to pay benefits to farmers under acreage reduction contracts entered into before the supreme court decision January 6. This measure must go through conference with the house before it is sent to the White House. An amendment was added to permit payment of cotton benefits still due regardless of whether the Bankhead act is repealed.

Processing Taxes.

4—Introduction of Senator Benson, farm-labor, Minnesota, of a bill to permit consumers and farmers to sue in federal courts for recovery of the $200,000,000 of impounded processing taxes which the supreme court ordered refunded to processors. Benson said processors had admitted passing taxes on to others and were not entitled to the money.

5—Introduction of a bill by Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, of the senate agriculture committee, to set up a three-man board to take offer around 6,000,000 bales of government cotton and sell to the highest bidder from $100 to 25,000 bales weekly, with profit going to the original growers.

6—Proposal by Senator Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, of an amendment to the Bankhead soil conservation bill authorizing the government to purchase 40,000,000 acres of wheat, corn, cotton, rice and tobacco on 10,000,000 acres of grazing and timber land and retire it from production. The program would cost $125,000,000 a year. The secretary of agriculture would be authorized to take out of the commodities on hand, and release them as demand arises.

Offering of a bill by Senator Pope, democrat, Idaho, to require a vote of at least seven of the nine supreme court justices before a law could be held unconstitutional. He said the people by their votes had approved the AAA program and added he did not propose to see the nation under the "absolute rule of nine men, however wise."

Proposal Supported.

Both republicans and democrats agreed the President's repeal recommendations were in the right direction.

"It is entirely the proper thing to do," said Senator Borah, republican, Idaho.

Senator Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, said he didn't see "any value" in keeping the three laws on the books. He added the cotton law which he believed had been passed for a purpose in cotton belt far more favorable than and purely co-operative program."

Senator George, democrat, Georgia, said repeal would end confusion among farmers and the industry generally. "These laws would inevitably fall anyway," he added. "They ought to have been repealed immediately after the supreme court decision."

Senator White, republican, from the potato state of Maine, said the message "Indicates the White House is tired of being scooped by the supreme court. For the first time it is anticipating court action instead of avoiding it."

Use of Funds.

The principal change made by the house committee in the soil conservation measure was incorporation of a provision authorizing the secretary of agriculture to use part of funds to be appropriated later for expansion of domestic and foreign markets and for removal and disposal of surpluses. Another difference from the text of the senate bill was a provision that funds could be used for dairy cattle tuberculosis eradication and control of Bangs disease.

Still another would limit the temporary two-year policy aims to soil conservation, soil rebuilding and promotion of economic uses of lands. Two other objectives—maintenance of a stable flow of commodities at prices fair to both producers and consumers, and re-establishment and maintenance of farm purchasing power—were switched to the permanent state-aid phase of the house bill.

The latter two aims are in the temporary sections of the senate bill. They would become additional policies under the house measure after January 1, 1938, when individual subsidies would be transformed into state-aid grants.

"If I let myself get constipated," he explains, "and my system filled with impure matter, I feel bloated, take cold easily, and feel out of sorts in a lot of ways. I will take about two good doses of Black-Draught, and I feel like doing my work."

Need for Protection of Wild Life Is Expressed by 'Ding' Darling

Former Biological Survey Head Urges Conservationists To Use Voting Strength in Political Elections at Capital Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A plea that conservationists use their voting strength in political elections was made to the North American Wildlife Conference today by Jay N. (Ding) Darling, former chief of the Biological Survey.

Most of the 1,500 game and fish authorities heard Darling's address at the conference's opening session after greetings were read from President Roosevelt, the president of Mexico and the prime minister of Canada.

Mr. Roosevelt's message, read by Secretary Wallace, expressed regret at his inability to attend the sessions and added:

"It has long been my feeling that there has been lack of a full and complete public realization of our wild life plight, of the urgency of it and of the inter-social and economic values that wildlife has to our people."

"I sincerely hope that with the help of our good neighbors to the north and south, you, your conference and you on a common purpose and a common program."

Darling told how once bountiful natural resources had been seriously depleted. He urged conservationists to inform governmental leaders of wild life needs and use their voting strength to obtain action.

"One of the jobs of the public official is to serve the people who elect him," the cartoonist-conservationist said. "Conservationists never helped elected anybody, or as conservationists we have never helped anyone."

"What is more, they never use their numerical strength after election. I am quite certain that there are more and local committees as well as existing AAA personnel, could be utilized in administering either the temporary or permanent plans."

CONGRESS GETS PLAN FOR SALE OF U. S. LINT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Legislation to dispose of the government's holdings of 6,000,000 bales of cotton started through congress today.

Chairman Smith, democrat, South Carolina, of the senate agriculture committee, introduced a measure to create a board of three to hold weekly sales of the lint, with the receipts going into the federal treasury.

The bill, somewhat changed from an original draft, would limit the sale to 25,000 bales a week with a minimum sales quota of 20,000 bales.

However, during November, October and November, peak months for movement of the new crop, sales could be suspended by the board. Its members would be appointed by the President.

Smith said his committee would meet tomorrow to consider the proposed plan for liquidating government cotton obtained through 12-cent loans on lint and through a producers pool.

At the beginning of each week the cotton sales board would announce its sales allotment for that week and the cotton would be sold to the five highest separate and distinct bidders, 100 of whom could purchase more than 20 percent of the allotment.

Smith predicted his plan would have no undue effect on the price of lint, but would advance the price of the amount to be disposed of within any given week.

As originally proposed, the Smith weekly sales policy plan limited the weekly sales allotment to 20,000 bales and sale of the cotton would have been placed in the hands of one man who would have been designated sales agent by the President.

The chairman said it was decided that a board of three would be best for conducting the sales.

GARRARD WILL RESERVE COTTON PURCHASE OFFERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Oscar Garrard, manager, announced today that he would reserve the right to purchase cotton for his own use.

Mr. Garrard, Greenwood, Miss., had been authorized to receive offers "for any part or all of approximately 25,000 bales of cotton" to be sold to him as manager of the staple cotton cooperative association.

On February 12, Johnson said, the pool would receive and reserve all the offers for purchase of not more than 50,000 bales, with not more than 5,000 bales to be sold to any one firm or interest.

Johnson said sales would be made below price levels prevailing at the points where the cotton is located.

OFFICIALS COMMENT ON ROOSEVELT'S REQUEST

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Representatives of farmers' organizations made the following comments tonight on President Roosevelt's message to congress recommending repeal of the Bankhead cotton control, the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage bill, and the potato act of 1935:

Hugh Tabb, executive secretary of the National Potato Association: "We have been against the substitute legislation. We feel a little discouraged, but I guess we shouldn't. It took the supreme court to stop us."

"We are waiting to see if the general farm legislation is strong enough to cover the potato situation. If it isn't, there may be some auxiliary legislation for intensive crops."

Milo Reno, of Moines, Iowa, president of the National Farm Holiday Association: "It's a wise move on Roosevelt's part. And he would be even wiser if he would let his whole farm program repealed and start over again, the next time building right."

Stanley F. Morse, executive vice president of the Farmers' Independent Council of America: "The administration now recognizes the complete collapse of the government farm program and should really let the farmers to develop a sound program based on farmer self-help—not on bureaucratic dictatorship."

The farmer must realize that the New Deal's unworkable farm panacea and costly experiment have been primarily to catch their votes."

U. S., JAPANESE NAVIES NEVER TO MEET—SAITO

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Hiroshi Saito, Japanese ambassador to the United States, said tonight that he is firmly convinced that the navies of Japan and the United States will "never be used against one another."

At a dinner held in his honor, Ambassador Saito asserted:

"I cannot believe that two such peoples as ours, ranking among the most generous in spirit and the most lighted, could be so weak in character and stupid of mind as to permit themselves to drift or to be misled into the folly of warfare."

JUDGE RULES COLLEGE SHOULD NOT BE TAXED

Declares Dental School Not Subject to City's Ad Valorem Tax.

Judge G. H. Howard yesterday in Fulton superior court ruled that the Atlanta-Southern Dental College is not subject to ad valorem taxes by the city of Atlanta.

His opinion, rendered after a five-day hearing, held that the college does not practice dentistry in violation of the law and is not operated for profit for private individuals nor as a corporation.

The court action resulted after the college refused to pay taxes of $1,922 for 1933 and $1,844 for 1934 on its property at Courtland and Forrest avenues, where the institution is located. Since its incorporation in 1926 to 1933, the college paid under protest that it was not taxable because no profit was derived from its practice.

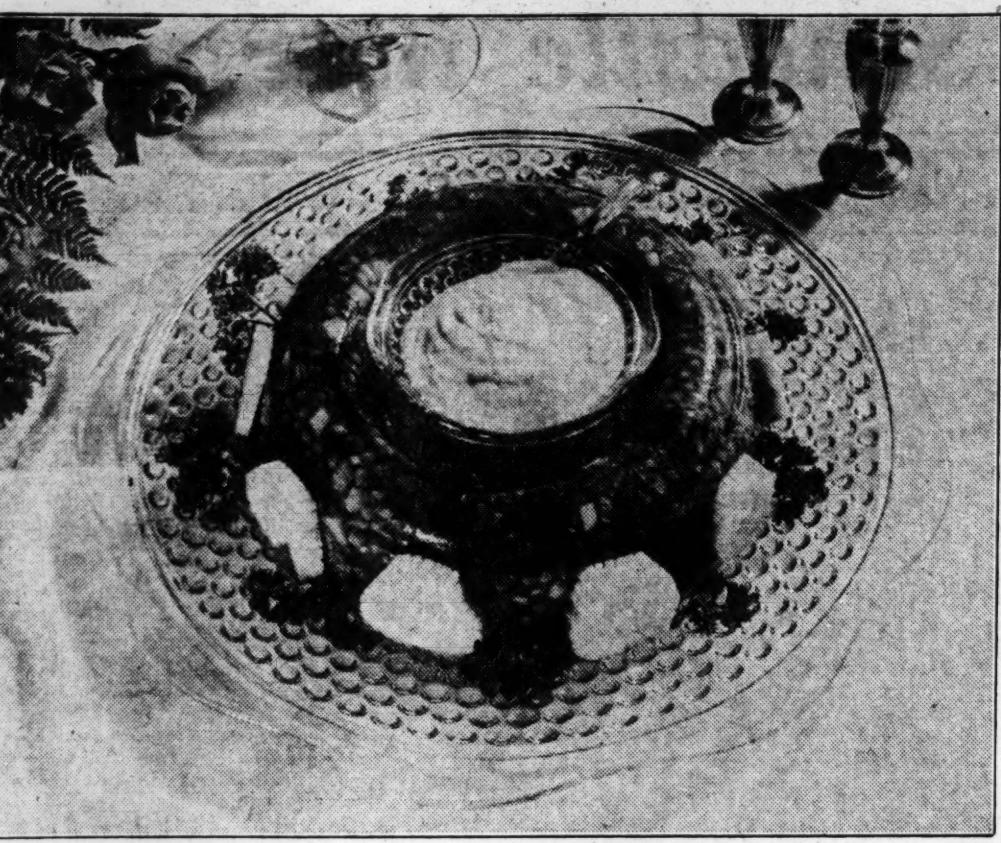

City Attorney Jack Savage and Assistant City Attorney Bond Almond said the decision of Judge Howard will be appealed.

Salads Solve Problems.

There are so many occasions when a meat salad proves just the right dish to serve that the clever housewife is on the alert to discover new and attractive ways of combining meat and vegetables in salad form.

A substantial, nutritious salad can be the main dish for the family luncheon, as a way of using up the remnants of yesterday's roast. Or it may be the "feature" of the carefully thought out menu for your luncheon party. It is a satisfying supper dish, and it may be most attractive when it makes its appearance at a buffet supper. Another advantage in serving a meat salad is that it can be prepared ahead of time.

And of course the best thing about it is that, rightly made, it is one of the most delicious dishes you can serve.

There are so many combinations that there is no excuse for falling into a rut of using the same kind of ingredients again and again.

Many Tempting Combinations. Here is a suggestion for a salad of minced ham, cottage cheese, pearl onions, minced chives and water-cress. Arrange the water-cress on a plate and place a little mound of cottage cheese in the center. Press down to make a cavity in the center of the cheese, and sprinkle with minced chives. Fill the cavity with minced ham. Garnish with a few pearl onions.

Another combination suggested is diced tongue, ripe olives, green pepper and lettuce, served with mayonnaise, to which a little grated horseradish has been added.

Any jellied meat may be used in salad. Have you tried jellied corned beef?

Jellied Corned Beef. One and one-half tablespoons gelatin, 1-3 cup cold water, 2 bouillon cubes, 2 cups boiling water, 1-4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup diced celery, 1-2 cup canned peas, 1-2 cup sliced radishes, 1-2 cup diced pickled beets, 6 ounces pressed corned beef.

Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water and pour over gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Add seasonings. When slightly congealed, add the vegetables and the corned beef which has been pulled into small pieces. Chill thoroughly and unmold on lettuce. Garnish with sliced cucumbers and mayonnaise.

Veal and lamb are favorite meats to use in salads. Here is a way of combining veal and bacon.

Veal and Bacon Salad. Three cups cold cooked veal, diced, 1-2 cup cooked bacon, finely cut, 1 cup celery, cut in 1-2-inch pieces, 1-2 cup mayonnaise, 6 small tomatoes, salt and pepper, radish roses, sweet gherkins.

Mix the diced cold cooked veal and the finely cut bacon. Combine with celery and mayonnaise and chill. Place a small tomato in a cup of crisp lettuce leaves. Cut the tomato down into several sections so that it will open like a flower. Place a mound of the salad mixture on the tomato and top with mayonnaise. Garnish the side with radishes and sweet gherkins sliced and spread in fan shape.

Here is a lamb salad you will like:

Lamb Salad. Two cups cold roast lamb, 1 cup cooked peas, 1 cup walnut meats, broken, 2 hard-boiled eggs, 6 stuffed olives, lettuce, French dressing, mayonnaise, paprika.

Cut lamb into small cubes and chill. Marinate meat, peas and nuts in French dressing and chill. Arrange lettuce leaves. Sprinkle with paprika and dot with mayonnaise. Cut the eggs into slices and remove the yolks. Arrange the white rings around the salad. Cut the olives into slices and place a ring of olives inside of each ring of egg white. Press the yolks of the eggs through a sieve and sprinkle over the salad.

Here is a pork salad worthy a place on any luncheon or buffet supper menu:

Pork Salad Platter. Three cups cold roast pork, diced, 3 hard-boiled eggs, 1-2 onion, grated, 1 chopped green pepper, 1 cup whipped cream, 3 stalks celery, diced, stuffed olives, sliced; mayonnaise dressing, French dressing, paprika. Add the diced celery and chopped green pepper to the diced pork. Grate in the onion. Marinate with French dressing. Add paprika and set aside to chill. When ready to serve, add whipped cream to mayonnaise and fold into the salad. Pile in a rounded mound on crisp lettuce leaves on a large platter. Garnish the salad with slices of hard-boiled eggs and olives. Around the salad place a border of pineapple slices masked with mayonnaise dressing and sprinkle liberally with paprika. Celery stalks, filled with cream cheese, add attractiveness to the platter.

WOMAN'S LEG BROKEN IN FALL DOWNTOWN

ELLIS BARRETT AVOWS FACTION INDEPENDENCE

Fulton Commission Candidate Says He Will Vote Own Convictions.

Mayor Pro Tem. Ellis B. Barrett, candidate for county commissioner in the March 11 county primary, yesterday issued a statement asserting he is the candidate of no clique or faction and that if elected his only interest will be a fair, honest and businesslike administration of county affairs.

For the past several years, Barrett has been one of the leading members of city council and has a record of constructive and progressive service. He has never been definitely aligned with either one of the other groups of council members, retaining his independence.

"I wish to say that I am a candidate for commissioner and that I want the votes of all factions and cliques," Barrett said.

"If I am elected I shall serve the best interests of all the people of Fulton county. Their interests shall be my own and I shall continue to be independent in order that I may vote my own convictions as to what should be done in any problem facing the board."

"My only pledge to the people or to any group is that I will so conduct myself that my work on the commission will be honest, fair and businesslike. That is as far as anyone should be asked to go, beyond that I refuse to go."

"If Ellis Barrett is elected to the commission he will go there his own man, just as he has been since he first entered politics."

Georgia Birds Starving As Snow Covers Ground

Georgia birds are "dying-like flies" with the ground covered with snow and ice, Mrs. Catherine Weathershoe, vice president of the Georgia Humane society, declared yesterday.

In order to help the birds survive the winter, the society asks that residents of the state, especially those in the northern section, put out food for them. It is suggested that bread crumbs or grain be placed in bare spots or in regular bird food boxes, as it is likely to sink through and be lost to the birds if placed on top of the snow.

ENLARGED SQUAD TO FIGHT LOTTERY

Chief Sturdiant Announces Addition of Two Men To Battle 'Bug.'

Lottery operations will be fought by Atlanta police with an enlarged squad of men assigned to the work, Chief T. O. Sturdiant declared yesterday with the announcement that he will add two more men today to the squad under Detective Lieutenant J. A. McKibben if Solicitor John A. Boykin does not accept his offer of 20 men to help clean up the numbers lottery.

G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee of city council, has offered the solicitor 20 men to aid him in his lottery fight, but Boykin has declined to do so, stating that all that is necessary to stop lottery operations is the vigilance of all policemen on their beats.

"I have backed up Chairman Bridges' offer to Solicitor Boykin of 20 men and he has refused them," Chief Sturdiant said last night. "So I am ready to enlarge the Atlanta police lottery squad to try to meet the situation."

A. B. McNaughton and R. E. Blair, members of the present squad under Lieutenant McKibben, will be aided under the new order by two additional men.

Take these 3 Simple Steps to Better CONTROL OF COLDS

- 1. To Help Build RESISTANCE to Colds
Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep. (During the colds season, gargle night and morning with Vicks VapoRub Antiseptic, especially designed for safe daily use to aid in defense against infection which may enter through the mouth.)

- 2. To Help PREVENT Many Colds
At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks VapoRub—just a few drops up each nostril. VapoRub is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, VapoRub helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

- 3. To Help END a Cold Sooner
If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical home guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians; further proved in everyday home use by millions. ## No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Guaranteed

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give lasting relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about operation when Jacobs Drug Stores invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.—(adv.)

BREAK O' DAY

the bankrupt club with its many ramifications, and brought order and chaos out of it. It was he who brought to Atlanta the late Wilbert Robinson as president and Earl Mann as vice president and secretary.

Appointment of Robinson, bringing him out of retirement after almost a half century of magnificent baseball history, brought national attention to the Atlanta club.

After the passing of Robinson he appointed the present set-up, with Earl Mann at its head. And it was Mann who named Eddie Moore manager to finish out the 1934 season. The two have made a great team, bringing a pennant to Atlanta last season. And with it a new attendance record.

RESTORING INTEGRITY.

Southern league directors restored the integrity of the league yesterday by voting for Earl Mann's proposal to award the pennant to the team winning it.

This is not as foolish as it sounds. Last year the team with the highest percentage had not won a thing except the right to enter a play-off series which decided the winner.

Atlanta had to win the pennant in a schedule of 154 games and then win a series from Nashville and New Orleans in order to win the pennant.

This season the pennant winner is decided on the season's play. The series will then be played to determine which team shall represent the league in the Dixie series.

The team finishing first will have an incentive to finish up there because of a bonus of $2,000 to be divided among the players of the pennant-winning team.

PENNANT CLAIMS.

Every representative yesterday entered a pennant claim except the gentleman from Knoxville.

Doc Prothro, of Little Rock, thinks he will be up there.

Tom Watkins, the gentleman from Memphis, declares he needs only a right-handed hitting outfielder to win the flag.

Nashville feels it is on the way to the pennant peak. Jimmy Hamilton believes he has it.

Larry Gilbert made no real claim, but he hopes to be up there. He always is in the fight.

Joe Engel never yet failed to predict a flag.

Billy West, of Birmingham, sees a flag this season.

And Earl Mann advised the boys to make their reservations yesterday for a meeting here next February.

LIGHTS EVERYWHERE.

Every park in the league will be lighted next year, except Knoxville.

The gentlemen who scoffed at the lights four seasons ago all are in line, except one.

Memphis will vote them in next week. A hospital next door makes it necessary to rule all night games be halted at 10:30 o'clock. That will help—not hurt—the night game. A league rule to that effect would be a good one.

A few clubs had them before Atlanta. But it was Atlanta's great success with the night game, two games per week, which made the other clubs see the light, so to speak.

CARD SHAKEUP GIVES ROOKIES BETTER CHANCE

More Power, Outfield To Support Deans Sought by Club.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(P)—More power and an outfield to support the hurling of the celebrated Dean boys represent the St. Louis Cardinals' theme song for the 1936 baseball campaign.

Circumstances have compelled the former world champions to do some experimenting this spring. The shake-up hasn't been so drastic as threatened, after the Cardinals "blew" in the stretch last season, but re-enforcements have been summoned for the so-called "chain gang."

There will be a wide-open battle for most of the regular jobs, forecast Branch Rickey, the club's executive master mind, today. "We have an exceptionally fine group of youngsters who will make every veteran on the team hustle when we call the roll at Bradenton."

The passing of the veterans, Jack Rothrock and Ernie Osnatt, emphasizes the extent of the outfield shake-up.

"Both were fast losing power," explained Rickey. "Rothrock, once an all-field hitter, good for many an extra base hit, was poking out singles. We need more punch."

Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, interrupted to suggest he would welcome a batsman who could get a steady share of one-base hits but Rickey retorted:

"I notice the Red Sox have put the accent on power too. You put me to sleep, Eddie, if Jimmie Fox hits singles instead of home runs."

It looks now as though Joe Medwick, Terry Moore and Pepper Martin will do all the outfielding and a good deal of the hitting we need. Medwick packs our big punch. Moore is a sophomore who should do much better this year. Martin will cover lots of ground and I look for him to hit more consistently.

"Pepper's shift to right field from third base, where he has starred for the past few seasons, is prompted by the fact we have some great young infielders coming up. There's Lyle Judy, for instance, a speed king and a great prospect. Then, too, Charley Gelbert made a wonderful come-back, after nearly losing his foot in a hunting accident, and he can play third base."

The loss of Bill Delancey, hard-hitting young backstop who has been seriously ill, is a big blow to the Cardinals but big Virgil Davis will be the No. 1 target for the Dean boys and Roy Parmelee, the speedball stars of this year's Cardinal staff.

Phillies, Cards May Make Trades.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—(P)—Rumors of a big player deal between the Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals today followed the recently announced intention of the local National leaguers to make whatever trades seemed profitable at the major league meetings in New York tomorrow.

Although the reported offer by the Cards of at least two players for the Phillies' mainstay pitcher, Curt Davis, had not been talked of in baseball circles, Davis has been rumored as up for sale.

One recent report said he might go to the Cubs, if Chicago could be induced to give Chuck Klein and come cash.

Manager Jimmy Wilson, of the Phils, was in New York tonight for the major league meetings, and was reported as ready to do business with whatever club would be willing to give him the material or cash he wanted for his stars.

Nugent Denies Card-Phillie Deal.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(P)—Gerald P. Nugent, president of the Philadelphia National league club, tonight denied reports that the Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals were considering a big player deal involving several leading players of both clubs.

"I know nothing of any deal involving the Phillies," declared Nugent, who is here for the league meeting tomorrow.

Danno O'Mahoney Risks Mat Title Here Tonight

Champion Danno O'Mahoney, who may be making his last southern tour, will meet Darv Roche, rugged Scranton coal miner, in the feature wrestling match at the Atlanta theater tonight.

O'Mahoney may not be the most colorful of the wrestling champions, but he has defended his title as much as any of the former holders of the crown.

Every time he enters the ring his title is at stake. This will be true tonight when he faces Roche, who was selected as the champion's opponent by a process of elimination.

O'Mahoney is expected to retire soon and return to the Irish Free State. He hopes to retire unbeaten, but it is unlikely that he will.

It may be Roche's night. The Scranton boy has been a constant threat to titleholders of the past.

A colorful card has been lined up by Matchmaker Henry Weber.

The ever-popular Paul Jones, rough and ready Texan, meets another scions expert in Roland Kirchmeyer in the semi-windup. Jones has been absent from Atlanta rings for some time.

Frank Speer, the old villain, meets Hank Metheny in the 30-minute caper.

The O'Mahoney-Roche title match is scheduled for 90 minutes, best-two-out-of-three falls. Jones and Kirchmeyer will battle for an hour.

Due to the limited seating capacity, all seats will be reserved. The card opens at 8:15.

INTERNATIONAL ADOPTS CARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(P)—The International Baseball league today cleared the decks for the opening of the 1936 season when the owners of the eight clubs adopted a 154-game schedule opening April 16 and completed arrangements for the play-off series.

The schedule, prepared by William J. Manley, secretary-treasurer of the circuit, and William B. Carpenter, supervisor of umpires, calls for Toronto to open at Newark, Montreal at Albany, Rochester at Syracuse and Buffalo at Baltimore.

The regular season will close September 7. Then, as last year, the four leading teams will meet in the play-offs with the winning club earning the right to represent the league in the resumption of the "Little World Series" with the American association pennant winner. The "Little World Series" will be renewed after a lapse of one year.

The team finishing first in the 154-game schedule will be rewarded with a $4,000 purse to be distributed among the players. A purse of $2,000 will be given the second team. As last year, the money will be raised by the league with a tax on admissions. In addition to representing the league against the American association winner, the team winning the play-offs will be given the governors' cup.

Phillie Rookie Crop Is Likeliest in Years

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—(P)—The likeliest looking set of rookies in a long time will accompany the Phillies' smallest squad in years to the Winter Haven, Fla., training base next month.

Manager Jimmy Wilson has high hopes for at least four of the newcomers, and believes that with a bit of seasoning, even more of them may turn out to be big-time material.

Heading the outstanding freshman prospects are Woody Abernathy, heavy-hitting outfielder from Baltimore; Bill Atwood, rated as a smart catching possibility, also from the Orioles; Leo Norris, purchased from Minneapolis and likely to start the 1936 campaign as first-string shortstop, and Claude Passeau, right-hand hurler from the Pittsburgh Pirates by way of Des Moines.

JAPS SEEKING REVOLT, RED LEADER CHARGES

Command Says Nipponese
Rails Strained Relations With Soviet.

MOSCOW, Feb. 3.—(P)—Soviet Russia's far eastern army high command in an unusual step today issued a communique accusing Japanese and Manchoukuo troops of "provocatory raids" into soviet territory.

Soldiers of the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchoukuo, the communique asserted, have taken up a position near the soviet border and are dispatching scouts into Russian territory.

This was the latest development in a long series of border incidents which have strained relations between Moscow and Tokyo.

The communique, issued from Khabarovsk and made public in Moscow, said three Russians were killed and seven wounded in a hand-to-hand fight with Japanese-Manchoukuo troops January 30. The latter were driven back February 1, the soviet account said, and two companies of Japanese-Manchoukuo troops assumed a position on the frontier on that date.

The communique asserted a company of Manchoukuo soldiers rebelled and after slaying four Japanese officers crossed the border and were interned by soviet January 29.

"It is obvious the main purpose of the present Japanese-Manchoukuo provocative raids is to force a return of the Manchoukuo rebels," the communique said.

"The campaign of lies and provocations by the Japanese army has been going on since 1931."

The soviet communique denied one reportedly issued by the Japanese army staff asserting the revolt of the Manchoukuo troops was inspired by soviet and that the battle of January 30 was fought on Manchoukuo territory against the rebels.

Official Tea Tasters Perform Annual Tasks

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(P)—The government's tea tasters sat down today for their annual tea party surrounded by no less than 1,000 different grades and varieties of tea.

The occasion was the yearly meeting of the United States Board of Tea Experts appointed each year by the secretary of agriculture to set standards to which the 85,000,000 pounds of tea imported annually must conform.

The tasters—seven men who know just about all there is to know about tea—sat around a revolving table and carefully sniffed and tasted the various teas as they came around. Because they had so many kinds to sample, the tasters didn't swallow the tea. Each mouthful went into handy receptacles near by.

The teas samples were submitted by various tea importing companies and the standards set up by the board today will govern all importations of tea for 1936.

Charged With Slaying.

DADE CITY, Fla., Feb. 3.—(P)—Sheriff G. E. Dowling today said he had placed a first-degree murder charge against Clifford Wilson Jr., 18, in connection with the fatal shooting of the boy's father, Clifford Wilson Sr., 45, at their home in Zephyr Hills last night.

The president explained the army reserve was being formed to maintain closer control over agrarian elements and "other contingents of citizens who co-operate with the government with arms in hand."

Rural school teachers, numbering some 18,000 throughout the country, were authorized recently to carry arms to protect themselves from attacks by enemies of socialistic education.

MEXICAN AGRARIANS ORDERED INTO ARMY

Cardenas To Form Reserve
Unit With All Armed Farmers.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 3.—(P)—President Lazaro Cardenas ordered today formation of a Mexican reserve army to include all armed agrarians in the country.

Although from previous presidential declarations it had been understood all peasants would be given arms and trained for military duty, the decree by General Cardenas referred only to agrarians who already have fighting weapons.

These will be placed under the direction of the newly-created army reserve, which also will register all pensioned and retired officers of the army and navy.

U. S. TREASURY BEGINS EXPORTATION OF GOLD

Flow of Metal Across Atlantic Reversed to Holland, France.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The flow of gold across the Atlantic was reversed today after adding about $2,000,000,000 of the monetary metal to the United States supply in the last 16 months.

Secretary Morgenthau announced the treasury had licensed $5,240,000 for shipment to France and $365,000 to Holland.

Reports from financial centers said the foreign exchange market apparently had been influenced by the drive in congress for printing press money, instead of taxes, for paying the soldiers' bonus and farm subsidies.

But Secretary Morgenthau restricted comment merely to saying the French franc had risen to the point where banks could profit by exporting gold.

If the franc stays above the gold point, he said, further shipments would be permitted as long as present exchange mechanisms are undisturbed.

The cabinet member was silent on recent reports in French financial circles that the treasury, in operating its $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, sought to avoid an outflow of gold. He let the shipments speak for themselves.

Three banks asked for licenses to move metal to France and one to Holland.

The amount involved hardly dents this country's huge gold supply. The treasury statement for January 31, showed a total of $10,182,246,742, or more than 40 per cent of the world's recorded monetary gold reserves.

Federal reserve figures recorded monthly gains of from $11,000,000 to $315,000,000 in gold imports since September, 1934. In that month the nation lost $18,000,000 on one of the recurrent waves of inflation.

The net inflow of more than $3,000,000,000 since the dollar was revalued early in 1934 was attributed first to a return of American capital and later to a flight of foreign money to the United States in fear of currency devaluation in Europe.

Foreign buying of American securities, together with a continued excess of merchandise exports over imports, also were seen as potent influences behind the trek of metal from Europe.

Some estimates in Wall Street placed the amount of foreign funds subject to immediate withdrawal as high as $1,000,000,000. Latest reserve figures recorded $400,000,000 in deposits held by New York city money banks for account of foreign banks.

Some treasury experts said this nation easily could meet any demand for gold in sight without damage to its credit or monetary structure. The metal supply is nearly twice the amount of currency in use and loans of commercial banks to private borrowers are around depression low.

EAST POINT COUNCIL DELAYS POLICE ACTION

The East Point city council last night deferred action on whether a new police secretary will be elected or the position entirely abolished. Ellis Whitley, elected to the post at the beginning of the year, has indicated he will not serve.

Neither did the East Point council take any steps to reduce the beer license in the municipality from $10,000, set by an old law. Only routine business matters were taken up at the meeting.

College Park city council, scheduled to meet last night, postponed its meeting until 7:30 o'clock tonight because of bad weather.

At the same time, Hapeville city council is expected to consider a proposal by members of the ordinance committee to raise the beer license from $15 to $300.

TRAINS ARE DERAILED BY STRIKING WORKERS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 3.—(UP)—Chilean army troops took over the state railways tonight after striking railroad employees had derailed three trains.

The strike began this morning in the southern zone and quickly spread to three other zones, threatening tie-up of all transportation and possible walkout of 18,000 workers.

Adolphe Menjou and Wife Reveal 7-Point Code on How To Be Happy

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The problem of "how to be happy though co-featured" sent Adolphe Menjou and his wife, Verree Teasdale, into a huddle from which they emerged with a seven-point code.

Here it is:

1. "We shall never carry any problems of the home to the studio when we go to work, or vice versa."
2. "We shall maintain a lively interest in each other's professional, as well as personal, welfare."
3. "We shall refrain from stealing scenes from one another."
4. "We shall not show press-clippings, unless one of us asks to see those of the other."
5. "We shall not discuss the doings of the day at the studio, except in usual instances."
6. "We shall not be 'camera hogs.'"
7. "We shall try not to submit to professional jealousy, which is subtler than the other kind and seldom comes into the open until it has developed to a dangerous point."

The Menjous, married a year ago, recently finished their first picture together ("The Milky Way"). Shortly after the last scene, each went to the hospital. But that was only a coincidence, they emphasize.

"You know, it's bad enough to be married to an actor," Menjou began. "Or an actress," Mrs. Menjou interposed.

"But it's one whole of a problem when husband and wife are both in pictures and in the same picture," they chorused.

"For example, it's a natural thing to try and steal a scene," Menjou said. "Any good actor has that instinct. He tries to do his best, and competition spurs him on. But you can't steal a scene from your own wife—well, that is, you shouldn't."

"And you shouldn't take your newspaper clippings too seriously either, that, too, is hard to keep from doing," Hence the code.

The Menjous, who are considered Hollywood's best-dressed married couple, also are known as one of the happiest.

They mean to stay that way.

CHESAPEAKE ISLANDS ARE ISOLATED BY ICE

Airplanes Unable To Reach 2,000 Persons Marooned in Bay.

CRISFIELD, Md., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Sleet which kept airplanes grounded blocked the last means of communications with two ice-locked Chesapeake bay islands today.

As it became clear that planes would be unable to reach Tangier Island, Virginia, and Smith Island, Maryland, today, Governor Harry W. Nice ordered six state troopers here to aid in efforts to aid the islanders.

The more than 2,000 persons on the islands have sufficient food to last for a week and no serious cases of illness have been reported. If the ice does not break up soon, however, said J. Millard Taves, head of the Red Cross chapter, it will be necessary to send additional supplies to the islands by plane.

Food was taken to Tangier yesterday by a blimp from Washington and a plane to Smith Island.

Major Enoch B. Garey, head of the state police, said he had been informed that Edward Thompson, Salisbury (Md.) amateur radio operator, was considering setting up a portable sending set on one of the islands. Such a set, Major Garey said, would enable the islanders to keep in close touch with the mainland.

Taves emphasized that at present there seems to be no lack of food among the islanders. They may need some things, like butter and sugar, he said, "but they have enough food. There isn't any privation or hardship."

More than 100 fishermen from the islands are stranded here and have been unable to reach their homes for more than 10 days. "Some of these fishermen haven't any money at all," he said, "and that might cause us some trouble if they can't get back home."

ICE BREAKERS SOUGHT TO OPEN BUZZARD BAY

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Boston Chamber of Commerce asked President Roosevelt tonight to order government ice breakers into the Buzzard bay area to avert "a shortage of fuel."

It asked the secretaries of war and navy in similar telegrams, to dispatch aid to the coast guard forces that have been struggling to keep open the Cape Cod canal and other ice-choked waterways.

The maritime division of the Chamber telegraphed the three executives that 14 tankers are caught in the ice blockade.

"Unless emergency measures are taken," the messages said, "the Boston area will be hit by lack of fuel."

Tomorrow the coast guard will send three cutters and a patrol boat to make another onslaught on the ice that has been laid on Buzzard bay.

Nantucket Island, cut off from Cape Cod by ice, was visited by planes on three different missions today. Some carried bread and other foodstuffs. A coast guard plane dropped the first mail in three days.

The Stone Horse lightship, stationed near Nantucket, forced four miles from its post by heavy ice formations.

ANNUAL TVA REPORT IS SENT TO CONGRESS

Representative McLean Objects to 'Unwarranted Delay' of Officials.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The annual report of the Tennessee Valley Authority for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1935, listing assets of $78,340,004, today was submitted to congress.

The report carried sections dealing with personal and power contracts which were not originally included as part of the information available to the legislators.

Representative McLean, republican, New Jersey, TVA critic, contended there should be an unwarranted delay in receipt of the report and it should have been made in December and not in February.

He said after a protest was filed against failure to include the personnel and salaries above $1,500, the report was taken to Knoxville, Tenn., TVA headquarters, for revision.

Since the report had accomplished the result intended, he said he would not at this time press his request for an explanation as to why the report was delayed.

The report said TVA work revolves around "critical national problems concerned with the basic resources of the country, the well-being of the entire country depends:

"1. Control and proper use of water resources.
"2. Conservation and preservation of land resources and;
"3. A more widespread use of electrical energy."

The authority reported it has also carried on planning and demonstration services in closely related fields. A net investment of $48,487,528 in programs under the authority was reported.

NEW FREEZE EXPECTED TO REACH CITY TONIGHT

A few degrees higher than Sunday. A big change in weather was expected along the coast and in south Georgia.

The mercury sank to freezing Sunday night at Raleigh, Charlotte, Asheville, Memphis and Little Rock, but below those cities it was generally warmer.

At one point, Columbia, Ga., had the northernmost of the state, where bureau officials said they had reports an ice storm similar to that which recently paralyzed this area, was forming.

Mr. Mindling said conditions were favorable for the Cornelia condition to "soften up" immediately. Damage was not expected to be great.

Thomson, in south Georgia, said a minimum of 54 Monday. The 44 at Charleston, S. C., was 44.

In Florida it was comparatively warm, with clear skies and light south of Tampa. The low at Miami was 68 and at Tampa 56.

ANOTHER SUPERSTORM WAVE MOVING SOUTHEAST

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The inexorable Mackenzie river basin showed another subzero wave southeastward tonight after most of the nation enjoyed a breathing spell from the arctic weather of the past fortnight.

Except in the Rocky Mountain country where near blizzard conditions tonight after most of the nation enjoyed a breathing spell from the arctic weather of the past fortnight.

In 20-degree weather, a heavy snow began falling in Chicago and the central "ion forecaster's office said it might reach blizzard proportions by tonight late Tuesday by a recurrence of subzero cold. The new cold snap, the forecaster said, probably would stay for several days.

A heavy dead frost as effective as severe cold in preventing efforts to aid the ice-bound residents of Tangier and Smith islands in Chesapeake bay. Plans for aid to the islanders were cancelled because of the hazardous landing conditions the sleet created.

But a ton of foodstuffs came to ice-bound residents of Tangier, Md., island. Three thousand residents witnessed landing of the three planes forestalling a threatened bread shortage.

New York coast guard headquarters received more than two dozen calls for aid from boats plying New York bay, which was studded with ice blocks. The Hudson river was frozen down to George Washington bridge.

'Midsummer Night's Dream' Lauded As Bewilderingly Beautiful Film

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" is a midwinter dream of entertainment, the audience at the Georgia theater, where the extravagant production opened last night for a three-day showing, declared with unanimous vote.

Never, in this reviewer's memory, has a more bewilderingly beautiful screen production been created. So impossible for human reproduction do some of the scenes appear that one is almost startled out of the land of reality and brought to the conclusion that a real fairy touch made the spectacle possible.

The robust wit of Shakespeare and the poignant, searching conquest of courtly love which the hard of Avon so aptly uncovered are brought forth in full bloom under Max Reinhardt's superb direction.

One cannot help but wonder what would be the reactions of William Shakespeare had he been sitting in a box at the Georgia theater last night. It is a far cry through the centuries from the first clumsy production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at Shakespeare's old theater in London about the year 1594 to Reinhardt's magnificent creation which has called on the marvels of modern science to produce.

A mere recounting of the immortal story is superfluous and out of place. Who is not familiar with the bewitching details of the whimsical story of a magic spell which causes susceptible human beings which brings

Puck to his undying epigram, "What fools these mortals be," and who, for a moment, let us take a look at the players who are in a large part responsible for this mystifying production. The cast is almost as breathtaking as the play itself. Ian Hunter is Theseus, duke of Athens; Dick Powell is Lysander and Ross Alexander is Demetrius, both in love with Hermia, played by Olivia de Havilland; Hobart Cavanaugh is Philostrate, master of the revels; James Cagney is Bottom, the weaver; Joe E. Brown is Flute, the bellows-blower; Jean Muir is Helena; Mickey Rooney is Puck; Anita Louise is Titania, queen of the fairies; and Victor Jory is Oberon, king of the fairies.

And this imposing list of players does not include many who are less widely known at present but who must undoubtedly rise to a high place in the public eye because of their marvelous characterizations in this one picture.

Atlanta will have the opportunity of witnessing this indescribable spectacle at matinees at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon and at 8:20 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night at the Georgia theater.

RIGHT TO JUDGE'S JOB ARGUED BEFORE COURT

Attorney Attacks Eligibility of Heery to Position on Bench.

Attorneys from Savannah argued yesterday before the Georgia supreme court the right of Judge B. B. Heery to hold the office of chief judge of the municipal court there. The court took the case under advisement.

Judge Heery was present during the argument and Jacob Gazan, the attorney who challenged Judge Heery's eligibility, argued his own case.

Gazan contended in his proceedings that Judge Heery's service as associate judge of the municipal court for about 13 years is not to be counted in arriving at five years' practice as an attorney required by law for the chief judge.

In their arguments Judge A. B. Lovett and Shelby Myrick, attorneys for Judge Heery, contended that the law did not intend to bar a man from the judgeship who had sufficient law and was otherwise eligible for the place and that Judge Heery had proven during his years on the bench that he was fully qualified for the position.

Prominent Eastern Visitors Arrive Tomorrow To Attend Christening

By Sally Forth.

THE christening of Lewis Monroe Smith Jr., the four-month-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Monroe Smith, which takes place at noon Saturday at St. Luke's Episcopal church, will bring to Atlanta four prominent eastern visitors who are keenly interested in the auspicious event.

They are Mr. and Mrs. D. Walter Mabey, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., maternal grandparents of the baby; Mrs. Frederick Perkins, of Providence, R. I., his maternal great-aunt, and Mrs. Mable Comstock, also of Providence, and a lifelong friend of the family. The foursome will arrive on Wednesday to visit the Smiths at their home on Demorest drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Mabey, who winter yearly at Camden, S. C., have a charming home there, which is a gathering place for exclusive society, and have as their guests in Camden Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Comstock. The three women were childhood friends in Troy, N. Y., and Mrs. Mabey, the former Edna Marvin, and Mrs. Perkins, the former Adele Marvin, were both attendants in Mrs. Comstock's wedding. Mrs. Perkins meeting her future husband at that time. It is particularly fitting that their close friend will be here for this occasion which is so important to them both.

Edna's school friend, "Weedie" Glancy Brandon, who was her roommate at Finch school in Paris, will be godmother for the baby. Inman Brandon, a schoolmate of Lew's, and Edna's only brother, Douglas Mabey, will be godfathers. Douglas, a student at Yale, will not be able to leave his studies to be here on Saturday. The Rev. John Moore Walker, rector of the church, will officiate at the services.

In addition to coming to Atlanta for the christening, Mr. and Mrs. Mabey will renew acquaintances made here on other occasions when they visited Lew and Edna, while Mrs. Perkins and Mrs. Comstock will meet Atlantans for the first time.

Lew and Edna are planning two teas to be given at their home in honor of their guests, one on Thursday from 5 to 7, and another on Friday at the same time. A number of other delightfully informal social affairs will complement these most attractive easterners during their stay in Atlanta.

WHEN a group of prominent Atlantans went on a house party at Sea Island, Ga., recently, some of their friends asked them to look up a young Princeton graduate and his bride, who were spending several days there also. The young man, Mr. Blank, graduated only a few years ago, and, during his school year, was quite a noted football player on the Princeton team.

So when the Atlanta group arrived at the island, they immediately asked an operator to connect them with Mr. and Mrs. Blank. As you know, the island is rather small, so this was accomplished without much difficulty. A charming voice answered them over the telephone, and they invited the young couple to come up to their home for cocktails that afternoon.

It wasn't very long before the appointed hour arrived, and the anticipated knock was heard at the front door. The hostess swung wide the portals to confront a charming white-haired gentleman and his sweet-faced wife. "It was lovely of you young people to think about us 'old folks' and invite us out to tea," the guests remarked. Of course, the operator had connected the young Atlantans with the wrong Mr. and Mrs. Blank, but the unanticipated arrivals were so entertaining and attractive that they were really glad that the mistake had been made.

OVER in Athens a congenial group of matrons banded themselves in a group called "The Eat-in' Club." Some of Tuesday is Fashion Day at Rich's - Models in the Tea Room 12 to 2.

Miss Mauldin Weds George W. Speer Jr.

ANDERSON, S. C., Feb. 3.—A wedding of interest was that of Miss Elizabeth Martin Mauldin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mauldin, of Atlanta, who became the bride of George W. Speer Jr., of this city and Clemson, on Saturday. The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Speer Sr., in North Anderson, with Dr. R. F. Kirkpatrick officiating.

The attractive bride, who wore a smart afternoon gown of tan crepe with violet accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of lavender sweet peas and pernet roses. She was unattended and was given in marriage by her father, Earl Mauldin. Serving as best man for his son was George W. Speer Sr.

Only the immediate members of the two families were present, and attended a small informal reception following the ceremony.

After a bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Speer will reside in Clemson. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mauldin, parents of the bride, of Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. W. H. Powe and Mrs. Powe, Misses Helen and Betty Powe, Mr. and Mrs. Garland McGregor, and Miss Martha Davis, of Greenville, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Mauldin and Misses Sue Mauldin and Anne Mauldin, of Charlotte, N. C., and Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Mauldin, of Asheville, North Carolina.

Miss Menzen Entertained.

An event of last Saturday was a bridal shower at which Miss Grace Menzen, entertained at her home honoring her sister, Miss Mary Ellen Menzen, bride-elect. Games were played, prizes being awarded Mrs. C. J. Chambliss and Miss Ann Katherine Barrien. Present were Misses Maxine Alderman, Jane Nash, Marie Pinkston, Lucille Allen, Elizabeth Durlan, Dorothy Seignelus, Mary Miller, Iris Kerlin, Willie Ridley, Evelyn Stallings, Roberta White, Kathleen Miller, Martha Kimbell, Ann Katherine Barrien, Katherine Forkner, Natelle Carley, Mesdames C. M. Chambliss, S. H. Bomer, Cliff Wilkie and Erwin P. Menzen.

their friends have urged them to be known more formally as "The Luncheon Club," but they insist the object of the club is mainly eating and they cling to that old name. Each member vies to have something a bit more original when the group meets with her.

On Saturday, Atlantans could have seen the club members enjoying a delightful luncheon in one of Atlanta's Chinese restaurants as guests of Miss Mary Ella Yancey. Miss Yancey, who frequently visits her sister, Mrs. Howell Erwin, in Athens, and is entertained at meetings of the club, decided to entertain them here and to give them something unusual in the way of "eat-in."

The affair proved a most delightful one and was enjoyed by the following club members: Mesdames Howell Erwin, Will Erwin, Burney Dobbs, McBride Howell, Morton Hodgson, Hunter Harris, Ralph Goss, Marion DuBose and Walter Sams. Other guests were Mrs. Will Walker, of Athens, and Mrs. Ben Barrow, of Decatur, formerly of Athens.

Mendelssohn with color tones once put lilt and delicate beauty into his immortal spring song... Today there's a fashion song of chromatics with grey carrying the melody that's sung from London to Paris, from New York to California. Grey of thunderclouds in a morning motif, grey of old Oxford and Cambridge in man-tailored togs, grey of fog, ethereal in wispy chiffon, soft grey, utterly feminine and demure as a dove. Thus the grey of feminine fancies with dynamics for tonal beauty, gives fashion a spring song—dominant, lilted and vibrant.

Cash Awards Await Leaders.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Thirteen out-of-state trips, eight college scholarships and a number of cash prizes were announced today as incentives to membership in the 4-H clubs of Georgia.

Harry L. Brown, director of the state agricultural extension service, said the contests had been devised to make club work more interesting and profitable for the boys and girls. The announcement was made in connection with the two-week 4-H Club enrollment campaign which started throughout the state on Saturday.

Georgia, Mr. Brown said, will send two boys and two girls to the national club camp in Washington, the trips going to outstanding club members in the state.

The state winner in a farm account contest will get $100 and the winner in each county with five complete records will get $10.

Eight scholarships to Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, Tifton, are available, and guarantee the boy the privilege of earning at least $60 of their college expenses.

The story of a Georgia farm boy whose interest in learning how to do things "the better way" has made him a successful farmer, with a gross income of $500 a month, was related here today by G. V. Cunningham, State 4-H Club leader.

The boy is J. H. Marshall, of Co-

E. E. Cox, of Camilla, is the present congressman from the second district.

J. H. Marshall, near Harlem.

"Marshall became a 4-H Club boy when he was 10 years old and he has become an outstanding farmer of the state," Cunningham said.

"I think he is a fine example of what 4-H Club activity can do for farm boys and girls."

"When J. H. had become 21, he was the owner of a herd of 52 fine dairy cattle, 35 pure-bred hogs, and eight pure-bred beef cattle, and the manager of a good farm in Columbia county. He has an income of $500 a month, gross. He has a fine dairy established, and keeps up other farming activities as well, on his father's farm."

"A few years ago his father turned the farm over to him, to manage. He runs the whole thing, and in addition to his dairy, grows feed, food and other crops."

SLAYING OF MOTHER IS CHARGED TO SON

Matricide Count Placed Against Young Man at Statesboro.

STATESBORO, Ga., Feb. 3.—(AP)—An asserted death watch examination by relatives of Mrs. Lillie DeLoach led officers today to hold her son on a charge of beating his mother to death "over a piece of meat."

Mrs. DeLoach's death on January 26 was attributed at the time to cerebral hemorrhage. She was stricken ill the night before.

Deputy Sheriff Stothard Deal said a 25-year-old farmer looked "for murder" as Lillie DeLoach was arrested yesterday following investigation of assertions made by Mrs. DeLoach's relatives.

He said it was told him the woman's head bore bruises and scars, which they said were disclosed upon examination of her body during a death watch at the home.

The story told by some of the relatives who said they were at the DeLoach home shortly before her fatal illness, Deal said "indicated DeLoach beat his mother over a piece of meat," and that her death resulted.

The young farmer and his mother resided together near here.

Deal quoted the accused man as denying all charges and with stating that his mother died of a stroke "after she had fallen out of a door at the house."

The case is scheduled to come before the grand jury February 17, the deputy said.

PREVENT DANGERS OF CONSTIPATION*

"Bulk" in ALL-BRAN Is Gentle in Action

Common constipation is largely due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. You fail to get your internal exercise. Millions of people have found that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies soft "bulk" with satisfactory results.

Tests in nutrition laboratories demonstrate that the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN can be used with the utmost confidence. Naturally, those few individuals with diseased or highly sensitive intestines should not take "bulk" in any form—in either in leafy vegetables or in bran.

Unlike cathartics, ALL-BRAN is natural in its action—nor does this food lose its effectiveness with continued use. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and cleanses the intestines, promoting normal and healthful elimination.

Two tablespoonsful of this delicious cereal, served with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. Enjoy it also in cooked dishes.

Help your family keep well. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GREENE OBSERVES 150TH ANNIVERSARY

Unveiling of Marker to Soldier Postponed Until May.

GREENSBORO, Ga., Feb. 3.—Greene county today celebrated the 150th anniversary of its founding with exercises held in the high school auditorium, which was crowded to capacity, despite the inclement weather.

T. B. Rice, Greene county historian, was the principal speaker and reviewed the history of the county. Professor G. C. Willis presided and the invocation was by Rev. Charles H. Kopp, pastor of the Greensboro Baptist church.

A federal marker to the memory of Major Jonas Fauche, a Revolutionary War soldier, who had charge of the military operations in Greene county during that period, was not unveiled on account of the weather, this event being postponed until May 9, the anniversary date when the survey work of laying out a site for Greensboro, was begun. A number of markers for other Revolutionary soldiers are also to be placed on that date.

Visitors here today included Mrs. H. D. Allen Sr., Mrs. J. I. Garrard, past regents of Nancy Hart Chapter, D. A. R., and Mrs. J. L. Beeson, of Milledgeville, state historian of the D. A. R.

The county, which was laid out in 1786, and the county site, Greensboro, were both named for General Nathaniel Greene, also of Revolutionary War fame, and later a citizen of Chatham county.

RAMSPECK BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Congressmen's Clerks Allowed Retirement Privilege Under Terms of Act.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Clerks to members of congress from Georgia and other employees in the national legislative branch of the government may be retired under the retirement act of 1930 with passage today by the house of the Ramspeck amendment to the act.

Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, chairman of the house committee on civil service, and author of the amendment, said in explanation of it:

"In computing annuities service, all employment prior to July 1, 1919, as clerk to a representative in the representative capacity shall be recognized in the retirement law in the legislative branch if and when such employment can be shown by records or secondary evidence."

The amendment, which will take effect October 1 of this year, was approved by Harry B. Mitchell, president of the United States Civil Service Commission.

Another bill of Mr. Ramspeck, which would extend the classified civil service to include postmasters of the first, second and third class, failed of passage because of the objection of Representative Wolcott, of Michigan, and other republicans who charged it was too political in its present form.

Both Representative Ramspeck and Representative Mead of New York, chairman of the committee on post-offices, told the objectors if they would bring in a better bill extending the benefits of civil service to all postmasters they would gladly support it.

SHOTWELL DISCUSSES NEUTRALITY PROBLEM

Columbia Economist at Athens Urges Caution in Shaping Bill.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Problems facing the United States and other nations, in enactment of permanent neutrality laws were discussed here today by Dr. James T. Shotwell, Columbia University economist and historian, in an address at the University of Georgia public affairs institution.

"The wisdom of going slowly in the enactment of permanent laws is so vast and complicated and vital a field of international relations should need no argument," he said.

Dr. Shotwell said that from the time the present United States neutrality law was passed, public opinion upon it, as upon invasion which would be necessary at the next meeting of congress.

He said the national peace conference and other organizations have studied the subject, and that the peace conference prepared a "redraft" of the law, chief points of which Shotwell outlined as follows:

1. The legislation should not be made permanent.

2. Rights and duties of neutrals should be defined by treaties.

3. The status of belligerents should be reconsidered in view of the fact that over 50 nations—including all the Latin American except Brazil—have accepted the existing obligations of the League of Nations.

Dr. Shotwell said "neutrality constitutes a status which affects the interests of other nations, as well as our own. To recast the existing and agreed relationships by unilateral action is a serious step."

"To say that it is no one else's business so long as we treat all nations alike shows a singular blindness to the fact that the new neutrality law is an invasion of the affairs of nations differently."

"It would be the part of prudence, to say the least, to make sure that our new law does not tend to build up more the old balance of power which is the very condition most likely to wreck neutrality in the long run."

LEGISLATORS PLEDGE AID TO SCHWARZKOPF

Foes Declare Hoffman Attempting To Oust N. J.
Police Head.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A drive to obtain reappointment of Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police who has been directed by Governor Harold Hoffman to find "accomplices" of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, gained headway in the legislature tonight.

Governor Hoffman's foes have attributed his interest in the Lindbergh case and his order to the state police to reopen the investigation to a desire to find a reason for ousting Schwarzkopf. The police superintendent directed the search that ended in Hauptmann's arrest and conviction in the kidnapping-murder of the Lindbergh baby. His term expires in June.

Reports circulated today that Ellis Parker, Burlington county detective chief, who has expressed the opinion Hauptmann is innocent, had a man under suspicion and would make an arrest shortly.

"If I knew of a suspect," Parker said tonight, "there wouldn't be any report of it. I'd arrest him in a minute. I've been looking into everything that comes along in this case, but I'm not doing anything particular just now."

Senator Lester H. Clee, Essex county republican and leader of the powerful economy bloc which has opposed the Governor on his fiscal program, indicated he would seek support for Schwarzkopf's reappointment.

"From my observations as a member of the budget advisory committee," Dr. Clee said, "I think Colonel Schwarzkopf has done a good job. I am receiving many letters from the rural areas asking me to work for his reappointment."

The senate must vote to confirm Schwarzkopf or any successor Governor Hoffman may name. Several senators said the nomination of another, but Schwarzkopf would meet opposition.

Convict Wanted in Atlanta
Granted Delay by Court.

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Augustus Dwight Beard, escaped convict from North Carolina, was granted a three-week delay in his murder trial here in order to enable his attorneys to collect evidence in support of an insanity plea.

Judge Grover Adams passed the case until February 24 in order that defense attorneys could obtain opinions from relatives and doctors in North Carolina.

The attorneys presented in evidence telegrams from Dr. Clyde E. Hedrick and J. D. Rudisill, of Lenoir, N. C., saying they believed Beard mentally unbalanced.

Beard is also wanted by Atlanta police for an alleged brief reign of crime here in which he is charged with several holdups and with the wounding of Patrolman I. P. Jones when he shot his way out of a police trap.

He is also alleged to have married a young Georgia woman, obtaining a divorce from a first wife.

Reaching Slams With Asking Bids.

Although I have only recently begun to publish information on the new "asking bids" and had written nothing on the subject before I started this year on my forthcoming complete book, the idea is not a new one with me. I had long known that the 4-5 no-trump convention, effective though it is, takes care of only 60 per cent of the possible slam hands, and that something must be devised to permit precise slam bidding on the other 40 per cent. Late in 1934 I announced that I was experimenting with certain bids which were requests for information, and published the simplest type of this bid early in 1935, over a year ago. The asking bids now are tested and ready for expert use, and soon we will be laughing about the inexact slam bidding methods we used for so many years.

The asking bid is used only after the partnership has definitely decided on its trump suit. After that a bid in a new suit asks for information as to whether or not partner has a singleton or a king in the new suit. At the same time, partner can show that he also has an ace by bidding the suit in which he has the ace. Lacking the necessary king or singleton, or an ace, he, of course, signs off by returning to the agreed trump suit.

A player can make more than one ask on the same hand. The first asking bid, however, has located the ace; the second asking bid seeks only the second-round control, and a conventional no-trump response is used, or an ace, he, of course, signs off by returning to the agreed trump suit.

Both sides vulnerable.

- MYSTERY HOUSE -

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

INSTALLMENT VIII.

Three families of Japanese managed the farm, all living together somehow in the one stark, weather-blackened old house that stood in a dark rabble of farm buildings close to the road. Page was unfamiliar with the secrets of the housekeeping; she only knew that the women worked as hard as the men did in the tomato and cabbage fields, and that beyond the black pit of the kitchen was a blacker pit furnished with what looked like the table-like frames of low beds, and that exactly as they stood were the night accommodations of the group.

It was a part of the eerie isolation of Mystery House that these orientals settled down for the night at dark every evening, and that their living quarters were as black after sundown as the barns that housed the stock. Also at dark the dogs were loosed—not particularly dangerous looking dogs, and not many. Yet there was something distinctly disagreeable in the idea of their proximity at night; Page had heard them barking furiously at treed coons or bobcats, and she gave them a wide berth.

But however dark and unfriendly it was at night, the farm was a pleasant rambling place in the daytime, and when Page arrived there with her cheeks glowing and her hair disordered, she enthusiastically accompanied Rand on his round of inspection, smiling at the women and children, eyeing respectfully the dairy and the hay barns, the fields and sheds and fences. Afterward she had a glass of cold, creamy milk and rested while Rand talked to the farmers. She was fresh and brisk for the walk home.

"This is all very grand," she said, as they went along steadily, feeling themselves a little tired now; eight miles isn't a bit too much on a cool day. But I'll be so sleepy that I'll want to go to bed all afternoon."

"Well, why don't you, then?"

"Oh, Mrs. Prendergast likes me to read and talk with her."

"The Duchess doesn't care how much time you take off," he said. "You're doing what she hoped you would do—getting Lynn to like you."

"Is he curable, Rand, do you think?"

"I don't know. He talks to you pretty rationally, doesn't he?"

"Wonderfully, sometimes. At other times he goes vague—he says his head aches a good deal."

"I think what he's got is migraine, for one thing. It's a horrible thing, a sort of super-headache. They can't do much for it—it doesn't understand it, in fact."

"When he's well and happy you see what a wonderful person he would be if he were—all right," Page said.

"Does he ever tell you anything about himself?"

"No. Everything seems completely confused. Is it a graveyard?" Page asked, seeing headstones among the thick piles of the strip of cliff they were passing.

"Yes. There was a church here years ago, I believe."

"The last touch!" the girl laughed. "Is Trudy Mockbee buried there?"

"I believe she is. It seems odd for you to have the name so pat," Rand observed. "You never saw her?"

"You didn't either, did you?"

"They walked on, the air was filled with the good salt taste of the sea."

"Rand," Page said presently, "do you think that if she got the diamond back she'd really move to Connecticut or Pennsylvania or somewhere?"

"Who told you she didn't have the diamond? Did she?" Rand's voice came sharply; he stopped short in the road.

"I forgot you didn't know that I knew it. And I can tell you only, she added, in sudden recollection of her promise, "if you'll promise never—never tell Mrs. Prendergast!"

"Did Flora tell you?"

"Lynn did. He's got it, then?"

"I had it in my hand," Page said, enjoying Rand's amazement. He had stopped short; his face was pale.

"You mean he showed you the diamond?"

"Yes. Over on the Rock."

"He keeps it there, then?"

"He says he keeps it different places."

Rand stared at her; his voice shook with excitement. "Will you come up to my study?" he asked. "This is important! You saw it? He's still got it?"

"I don't know much," Page protested. "And remember, it's a secret!"

She went with him up through the dark unfinished rooms, and found herself in a pleasant room equipped with a fireplace and big leather chairs, a desk with a drop light, medical books, and various oriental touches in the shape of brasses, tapestries, idols that reminded her that Rand had lived for long years in China.

"Get comfortable," Rand said, busying himself with a fire. "I won't keep you long. But this is—tremendous. She's been wondering for weeks if he had it at all. She has asked him, I believe, if he still has it. But he only laughs and goes silent."

"How on earth did he get it?"

"We don't know," Rand pushed girl and chair and all to the hearth, and Page laughed again.

"Did the housekeeper—companion—whatever she was, Trudy Mockbee, did she have it?"

"No. Not that we know of. It was kept in a bag in the safe, a big leather bag—well, this size," He indicated with his hands a space some inches square. "And then a case and a leather bag inside. This was used to put it away for the Duchess, years ago. She could have substituted an imitation, I suppose. But it would have been a risky business, and in any case the case would be there."

"It wouldn't have been any good to her," Page said thoughtfully. "She couldn't have sold it. Could any thief get away with a stone like that?"

"Well—" Rand said, pondering, "a professional crook might find a fancy to buy it. His voice fell into an absent-minded murmur. "Could you get him to show it to you again?"

"And have people round to grab it?" the girl asked, her thought as quick as his.

"Ah, you'll get it now. You'll only have to tell him that you want it. It's obvious that the boy is in love."

"I don't know that either, and Page felt her color rising, and saw that his own face grew red. Neither was thinking of Lynn. For a long minute there was silence.

Then Rand said, somewhat awkwardly, "Well! Wouldn't it be the simplest way to have you just—ask him for it?"

Page reflected on this, frowning. "It might undo everything I've done to make him like me, to make him trust me. It wouldn't be fair to let him know that any other reason for liking him than—than just that I do like him."

"It would be simple," the man said. "Perhaps it wouldn't matter what he thought. I don't know that he remembers very clearly."

"Suppose we leave it that if I get a good chance I'll ask him to give it back to Mrs. Prendergast? I'll tell him it's wrong to keep another person's property. But you see the trouble is, Rand, that some one—these detectives probably—framed him. They threatened him, and he says she did, too—with an institution, if he didn't give it up right away. He's quite smart enough to know that as long as she doesn't get it she won't send him away."

"Ha! That's a complication," Rand said.

KING ALFRED THE GREAT.

1—Early Life.

Of all the kings in English history, there are few who hold such a high place as Alfred the Great. Alfred lived and ruled more than a thousand years ago. The year of his birth is not known certainly, but is believed to have been either 848 or 849. Strangely enough, the date of his death is also a little in doubt, but it took place about the year 900.

Some persons in England know how to write during the reign of King Alfred, and records were kept about him, but the exact meaning of some of the records is not known.

During his boyhood Alfred made a journey to Rome, where he saw and talked with the pope. The ways of travel were rude in those days—the only good roads were those left from the days of the ancient Romans, and even the Roman roads were not in good repair. The trip Alfred made was in the company of older persons, and seems to have been chiefly overland, through France.

The part of England ruled by Alfred's father was known as Wessex, home of the "West Saxons." Another section was Kent, home of the Jutes. The Angles (who had settled in England with the Saxons and Jutes) were in kingdoms known as Anglia, Mercia and Northumbria.

The Danes had invaded each of those little kingdoms, and held part of the land in all of them when Alfred, as a young man in his twenties, came to the throne of Wessex.

learned Anglo-Saxon poems and songs from his mother. There was a beautiful book (hand-written, as were all others of the time) to the one of her children who first learned to read it. Alfred is supposed to have been a very private person, though he was only five or six years old at the time, and had to compete against older brothers and an older sister.

Like some other stories about Alfred, that one probably was just "made up" but it seems certain that he had a love of books and learning during his boyhood.

TEXTILE CONTROL BILL

DECLARE OPPRESSIVE

Officially Say Measure Would

Hike Cost in Industry by

50 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A spokesman for the cotton textile industry today retorted a charge that the Elsenbogen textile control act was

"dictatorial."

After a brief tiff with the author of the bill he substituted the word "oppressive."

He was Sidney P. Munroe, assistant to president of the Cotton Textile

Institute, who previously had denounced the bill as "radical, revolutionary and dictatorial."

Munroe also said the bill would increase costs in the cotton textile industry by 50 per cent.

He testified before a house subcommittee conducting hearings on the Elsenbogen bill to control the textile industry.

Today's argument against the bill by spokesmen for the cotton textile industry was dragged out by lengthy cross-examinations and were enlivened at the outset by an exchange between

Elsenbogen and G. H. Dorr, chairman of the board of the Cotton Textile Institute.

Dorr opposed the bill as unnecessary, commenting that efforts of the industry toward self-regulation had been surprisingly successful. Elsenbogen interjected a charge that the cotton textile industry was organizing a job-

by in an effort to "retain processing taxes returned from escrow."

Dorr denied Elsenbogen's accusation, explaining that the industry was fearful of retroactive taxation under the new farm program. He pointed out that for the past four months cotton manufacturers had made sales under contracts guaranteeing to customers refunds of the processing taxes if the levies were invalidated by the supreme court.

"Well, I don't want to see manufacture," he said.
